Midsummer Doldrums Many Are Saving Some Cheerful News Two Old Fairs Decay

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

This is the real midsummer, the doldrums in human activity.

The President is on his way home from Hawaii and may have something cheerful and exciting to tell us.

He will learn that mutual savings bank accounts have reached a new high peak throughout the nation, depositors have increased in the past six months by 273,898. Total number of individual depositors now 13,686,947, and total deposits nearly ten thousand million dollars, a good deal of money.

That is good news for those that have something and know enough to save part of it. It means, however, that many open or increase savings accounts because they do not know any other safe way to invest money, and that is not so cheerful. Good times depend on new ventures, bringing more employment.

Steel production, a sort of industrial and prosperity indicator, is down, off 5.7 per cent in a week. Total production is only about one-quarter of what the industry could do. Dull steel production means a dull labor market.

Steel makers look for improvement this month and next from automobile makers.

The automobile news is more cheerful. Pleasant proof that citizens are "lifting up their hearts" and beginning to spend again. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., gives his General Motors stockholders good news about increased sales and profits. No concern in the country has made a harder, more courageous fight against the depression than the fight made by General Motors.

Encouraging, and important also, is the announcement by S. Bayard Colgate, president of a big soap manufacturing company, of profits increased 215 per cent during the past six months, $2,436,687 net; as against $785,120 for the preceding six months.

The world becomes more commonplace with the passing of time. Now the famous Stourbridge Fair comes to an end by official proclamation. The great British University of Cambridge is said to be a by-product of that fair, which has existed for one thousand years. King John saw the fair, and the good monks of St. Mary Magdalene received revenues from the fair, to help them in their benevolent care of lepers.

The ancient Russian fair of Nijni Novgorod has also fallen into decay. A wonderful gathering place that was, for merchants of China, Tartary, Muscovy and the vast Eastern regions of strange people and products. There Ivan the Terrible committed some of his worst atrocities, as when he promised a group of priests that had displeased him "an interesting surprise," and then put them in a pit to fight against huge bears, with no weapon but a short spear. All were killed, although one young priest of amazing strength and courage first killed his bear, then died of his wounds.

Don't forget to see Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition this summer. If you saw it last year, you will see an entirely new exposition this year. And in any case, you will congratulate yourself on your trip, whether you go by railroad train, automobile, motor bus or plane.

And make the visit a "See America first and frequently" trip. Going and coming, from North, South, East or West, you may see everything that you want to see, Niagara, the Grand Canyon, yawning, awe-inspiring caverns, great national parks, and, above all, the Pacific ocean, the biggest, most thoroughly American thing we have.

If you start from the East, push on to the Pacific. Run north and south along the Pacific's edge for 1000 miles and more, from San Diego to Seattle, and on up to giant Alaska, if you have the time.

Above all, save plenty of time for San Francisco. There you will find as perfect a summer

H. Jefferson Coolidge Dead

BODY FOUND IN LAKE ON N. H. FARM

Harold Jefferson Coolidge, 65, [illegible] descendant of Thomas Jefferson, and a socially prominent lawyer and director of the National Shawmut Bank, met death last night in Squam Lake, N. H., by accidental drowning, directly caused by a heart attack.

News of his death was received here today by one of his law partners, Samuel Vaughan, from the widow, the former Edith Lawrence, niece of Bishop William Lawrence. Coolidge had offices at 82 Devonshire street.

Mr. Coolidge had gone for a walk on his summer estate on Long Island, near Ashland, N.H., according to his widow, with his dog. When the animal returned alone, a search was started that ended with the finding of the body.

Coroner L. M. Orton announced that Coolidge was found in shallow water into which he had apparently stumbled when stricken.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Coolidge is survived by two sons and a daughter. They are Harold

MAN, 77, HELD IN GIRL STABBING

After an argument over property ownership, John Moreschi, 77, of Montrose street, Everett, stabbed and seriously wounded his daughter-in-law with an eight-inch knife at her home today, according to the police.

The victim, Marianna Moreschi was rushed to the Whidden Memorial hospital, Everett. Her name was placed on the danger list.

A short time after neighbors notified police that there was trouble in the Moreschi home, Patrolman Joseph O'Donnell of the Everett police arrested Orecchi at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Francis Lucci, Heath street, Everett.

Moreschi was arraigned immediately after his arrest in Malden district court on charges of assault and intent to murder. Judge Alfred G. Davis ordered him held in $15,000 bail for the grand jury.

Diver Dies As Air Line Tangles

On a murky sandbed, 40 feet under water at a Cape Cod Canal bridge job, a heavy piling trapped a diver today.

His life lines and air lines tangled and the intake valve of his helmet snapped shut. Hiss of air ceased.

Arthur H. Davis, 20, of Reading, met the death all divers fear, trapped without air for more than an hour as another diver, making three swift descents at the risk of his own life, fought to free his comrade.

While Davis died pinned at the bottom of a coffer dam a few hundred yards from the canal bank at North Sagamore, his young wife lay on a bed in a Woburn hospital, cuddling her new born baby.

She has not been told.

Davis was one of the young diving heroes who salvaged the sunken submarine S-51 which sank off

CASSIDY RAISED TO BISHOP

Bishop James E. Cassidy today was named bishop of the Roman Catholic see of Fall River, according to word from Vatican City.

The new bishop had been auxiliary to the late Bishop Daniel F. Feehan as well as apostolic administrator of the diocese. Less than three weeks ago he was named coadjutor bishop by Rome, thus insuring his right of succession.

Bishop Cassidy is a native of Woonsocket, R. I. He studied at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore and Rome. He was ordained a priest in 1896. He was chancellor and vicar-general of Fall River before being named auxiliary in 1930.

FIGHT ON PHONE RATES TO ELY

Aroused by the failure of the public utilities commission to order a reduction in telephone rates, Wycliffe G. Marshall, attorney for the Boston Central Labor Union, today asked Governor Ely to call a special session of the legislature to revise the laws relating to the telephone company.

At the same time Marshall requested Attorney General Joseph E. Warner to institute proceedings against the company claiming that it is "illegally" organized.

In his letter to the Governor, Marshall, who led the long battle against the company, charged that adequate regulation of telephone rates in this state had collapsed from the standpoint of the customer.

GIRL DEAD, 3 STRICKEN IN MYSTERY

Death today of Dorothea Pendleton, 6, of 138 Eutaw avenue, Lynn, was set down officially as a mystery and police joined medical authorities in investigating the cause.

Three of the child's brothers were revealed to be in Lynn Hospital in a serious condition with severe abdominal pains and convulsions.

Taken to Lynn Hospital after her mother had plunged her up to the knees in boiling water yesterday to relieve the pain of convulsions, the girl died today. At first it was announced that death was caused by second degree burns.

Fruit which may have been sprayed with poison to kill insects and eaten by the children was considered by investigators as a cause of their illness.

Medical Examiner Nathaniel P. Breed, declared that Dorothea's burns were not serious enough to cause death. He also revealed that the child had suffered two convulsions yesterday before her mother, Mrs. Geneva C. Pendleton, plunged her into the hot tub.

The mother had been informed by neighbors, she told police, that the convulsions could be stopped if the girls feet were placed in hot water.

FORGOT TO COOL WATER

Mrs. Pendleton said that she had meant to cool the water slightly, but had forgotten to do so in her excitement when the girl was seized with a second spell.

Dr. Breed refused to say at once what had caused the child's death, but was not ready to order an autopsy yet. He pointed out that three of the child's brothers, Robert, George and Donald, 8, had been hurried to the hospital in convulsions.

They were being attended by staff physicians as he spoke, and he hoped that the determination of their illness would also solve the mystery surrounding the death of Dorothea.

2 OTHERS RECOVER

The medical examiner also stated that two other brothers, Harry, Jr., 14, and Richard, 4, had been violently ill yesterday, but had recovered.

Dr. Breed asked Acting Chief of Police Edward D. Callahan to make an investigation, and police inspectors were assigned to the case.

Berlin, Aug. 1—An exclusive International News Service dispatch from Vienna, announcing that the Austrian government would refuse to receive Vice-Chancellor von Papen if he came to Vienna as special envoy of Chancellor Hitler, struck like a bomb in government circle today.

Hindenburg Is Still Living

By Associated Press

Neudeck, Germany, Aug. 1—Chancellor Hitler spent one hour and a quarter with President Von Hindenburg today, then left by automobile with his full staff.

The official cars took the road toward Finkenstein but it was believed possible that the chancellor might go direct to the airport at Marienburg and from there fly back to Berlin which he left this morning.

At 12:20 p. m. (7:20 a. m. E. D. T.), the physicians announced:

"Condition as compared to this morning is unchanged. Toward noon the patient took light nourishment."

It was shortly afterward that Hitler and an entourage arrived by automobile from the airport at Marienburg. The party composed

AUSTRIA BLAMES GERMANY AS NAZI CLEANUP BEGINS

HITLER FACES BIGGEST CRISIS IN HINDENBURG'S FATE

By WADE WERNER
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

Vienna, Aug. 1—With armed opposition crushed, the Austrian government today began a mopping-up campaign against Nazis inside and outside the country.

On the one hand was the issuance of an order forbidding salary payments to any public employes suspected of aiding or encouraging the Nazi revolt; with the other hand, Austria officially pointed an accusing finger at Germany for the blood which flowed from the Nazi attempt to seize the government one week ago today.

An announcement approved by the cabinet said directions to Austrian Nazis were sent into the country several weeks ago from Germany.

The plans, which included the possibility of civil war, said Walter Adam, propaganda chief, in a radio address, were seized in the shoe of a man arrested in Upper Austria. This man confessed receiving $100 for delivering the document—now partly decoded, Adam said.

MORE SLAYERS TRIED

Included in the mopping-up campaign was the court martial at Innsbruck of two Nazis who killed the commandant of police there last Wednesday. A Nazi companion of the two who were hanged here yesterday in connection with the actual killing of Chancellor Dollfuss was expected to go on trial at another court martial in Vienna.

The order against salary payments to Nazi-sympathizing public employes was telegraphed to all federal, provincial and district disbursement officers. Denunciations of individual employes are to be submitted to the nearest police headquarters which will investigate doubtful cases — the suspects meanwhile remaining without salary until the case is cleared up. It is not yet known what per cent of the government payroll will be affected.

'HEIL HITLER' COSTS PAY

Twenty federal employes who were reported to have cried "Heil Hitler" when they were captured at the chancellery by the Nazi raiders last Wednesday were said to be among those who got no pay checks.

The government placed another economy into effect with the issuance of new five-schilling silver coins (worth approximately $1, U. S. currency) to supplant five-schilling notes. The notes required gold coverage but the coins do not.

Another government announcement, stated Franz Holzweber and Otto Planetta, who were hanged yesterday for their part in the putsch died with the cry "Heil Hitler" on their lips.

ACCUSES HEIMWEHR

The cabinet is still delaying action on approval or rejection of Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen as a special German envoy to Vienna.

What action will be taken against 142 Nazis, companions of Planetta and Holzweber in last Wednesday's capture of the chancellery, was not revealed. They are prisoners in a barracks here.

A startling interview was given by Franz Winkler, former vice-chancellor under the late Chancellor Dollfuss, in which he charged the Fascist Heimwehr (home guard) had planned to overthrow Dollfuss until the Nazi putsch beat them to it.

The Heimwehr is now a most important cog in a truce government with its leader, Prince Rudiger Ernst Von Starhemberg, serving as vice chancellor.

HAD GERMAN PASSPORT

In linking Germany with the putsch, Dr. Aram said the man arrested with the plane had a German passport in the name of Franz Heel. Nazis were not named, he said, but were referred to as "our people."

Heel admitted receiving the documents in Passau on the Bavarian side of the border, Adam continued, agreeing to deliver them at the Linz postoffice for $100.

HITLER'S PLOT TO SEIZE RULE REVEALED

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

Berlin, Aug. 1—Adolf Hitler intends to be both president and chancellor of Germany, one of his close friends told the Associated Press today.

Hitler departed from Neudeck with his staff today after a visit to the stricken Von Hindenburg's bedside. The cabinet was ordered back from vacations for a session tonight.

The German press was commanded not to speculate on Von Hindenburg's successor.

Physicians watching over the president as he lies near death at Neudeck, East Prussia, reported a slight improvement last night. But the end of the 86-year-old leader seemed near.

CONSERVATIVES IN DREAD

Despair gripped many conservatives who had looked upon Hindenburg as an anchor against extreme Nazism.

If Von Hindenburg dies, the Associated Press informant said, Hitler would call the cabinet together and read a brief law concentrating all power to himself as president and chancellor.

"The whole thing will take but a few minutes," he said, "for the cabinet will of course endorse the proposal. It will simplify Der Fuehrer's (Hitler's) whole work immensely if he need not first ask somebody whether he may do this or that."

An indication of the reliability of this source is that Sunday he revealed Von Hindenburg's turn for the worse and was the first man to tip off the fact that Hitler was going to Venice to meet Mussolini.

Under the constitution Dr. Erwin Bumke, president of the supreme court, would become acting president until an election was held to choose a successor.

"All that has been taken care of," was the terse statement of the propaganda bureau on the matter of succession.

To many observers this indicated the stage has been set for Hitler.

A foreign office official pointed out "the Hitler government holds emergency powers enabling it to do most anything."

HITLER'S POWER VAST

If such are the plans of Hitler, the time is speedily approaching when Germany's enigma, the Reichswehr, or regular army, will have to uncover itself. It has long been devoted to Von Hindenburg Germany's World War hero.

Men who know the spirit of the Reichswehr say it is possible Hitler would not have such smooth sailing if he seated himself in the Hindenburg chair.

Ever since 1919 it was pointed out, the Reichswehr has adamantly refused to become the football of politics. The army was the chief instrument of the president, while police were the agency of political cabinets.

To place the Reichswehr under Hitler, the head of a political government and a political party, friends of the army say, would mean an about-face on a policy carefully nurtured as a heritage of the army for 15 years.

Hitler's powers would become unlimited. They would include that of removing men like General Werner Von Fritsch, chief of staff of the army, who is said not to be in accord with Nazi policies.

MAN BEATEN TO DEATH, 2 HELD

Two Roxbury youths were arrested today and charged with manslaughter as two of four alleged thugs who beat and kicked to death an unidentified man about 60 years old in Dudley street, near Brook avenue, at midnight.

The youths are John J. Rowen, 20, Magazine street, and John J. Tunney, 21, Shirley street.

Complaints charging manslaughter were obtained in Roxbury court by police of the Dudley street division.

Tunney and Rowen were arrested on descriptions given by Everett Earle, 23, of Brooks avenue, Roxbury, who said he also was beaten by the four.

Earle told police he was talking to the elderly man, whose name he did not know, when two youths approached and began to bully them and that two others joined in the attack.

The dead man weighed about 160 pounds. He was 5 feet 10 inches tall, had grey hair, and wore a leather belt with the initial "W" on the buckle.

U. S. and Reich May Swap Wine

By International News Service

Berlin, Aug. 1—Swapping California red wines, bottle for bottle, for German moselles is the ambitious plan envisaged in Berlin today by a group of American business men.

For the past eight months they have canvassed the field in Germany for American red wines and found it wide open. It's an established fact that Germany, home of the sparkling moselles, has completely failed to produce any delectable red mines and, therefore, is forced to fall back on expensive French imports.

The German, however, has a natural aversion to drinking red juice produced in fields across the western frontier and therefore sticks to home products, had as these may be.

'Hitler Envoys Stay Out,' Austria Warns

while the new Schuschnigg government would agree to the appointment of Von Papen as an ordinary diplomatic representative of Germany, it finds him unacceptable in the role of special representative of Hitler.

At the same time he announced that the Schuschnigg government is conducting no direct negotiations with Germany at present but expects the big powers to put an end to the Austro-German conflict.

A government spokesman said:

"The Austrian government is not conducting direct negotiations with Germany at present, but it expects the situation will be cleared up by action of the big powers."

The spokesman was asked whether there had been negotiations between Schuschnigg and Von Papen, who are old school friends. He replied:

"Schuschnigg and Von Papen are well acquainted, but old relations ceased with Von Papen and other members of the German government in the last few months."

Asked whether the government would agree to the appointment of Von Papen as minister to Germany, he said:

"We are ready to agree to Von Papen or any other acceptable envoy if he will be merely the diplomatic representative of his country. But we are not ready to agree to anybody who comes as the special representative of Hitler or the Nazi party of Germany.

ENVOY OF NAZI BARRED

"If it were intended to send Von Papen as a successor to Rieth (Kurt Rieth, German minister to Vienna whom Hitler recalled for involving Germany in the chancellery raid) it would not have been announced that he would be responsible to Hitler only.

"If he were officially appointed as minister then agreement would be given to him at once."

Paul Hudl, a former lieutenant in the army, will be the next of the 142 Nazis, most of them boys, who were captured in the chancellery after the death of Chancellor Dollfuss, to go on trial late today.

He faces the fate of Otto Planetta and Franz Holzweber, the first of their number to go on trial, who died in the slow strangulation of the Austrian method of hanging.

Hudl is a personal friend of Major Emil Fey, special commissar of security, who was captured in the chancellery by the Nazis with Dollfuss. His father is a personal aide to the Archduke Eugene of Hapsburg who recently returned to Austria and reportedly intervened to have Hudl's trial postponed until after that of Planetta and Holzweber.

TAKING NO CHANCES

And Vienna, having at last witnessed the hanging of Nazis, waited for the dire things threatened to happen. These included the shooting of 500 priests and the bombing of the Cathedral of St. Stephan, one of the finest cathedrals of Europe.

None of these things had happened yet today but the government was not taking them as idle threats. The cathedral especially was guarded inside and out and every devotee arriving for the morning masses was carefully scrutinized.

There was a bomb explosion near Vienna and three houses were reported dynamited in Salzburg after the hangings.

Although they are all obviously guilty of treason, the charge on which their leader, Holzweber, was convicted and hanged, it is doubtful that many of the 142 young Nazis, whose average age is 20, will suffer the extreme penalty.

For one thing, Austrians are very reluctant to execute minors. It was recalled that Gavril Princip, whose rash act at Sarajevo threw all Europe and later most of the world into conflict, was not executed because he was under 21.

an entourage of nine automobiles, each carrying seven men. Most of them were members of the Schutz Staffel—the Black Shirted special guard which Hitler organized.

Others in the party included Otto Meissner, secretary of the president, Wilhelm Brueckener, adjutant to the chancellor, Ernst Hanfstengl, confidant of Hitler, and Heinrich Hoffman, Hitler's photographer and companion on flying visits.

The first bulletin of the day, issued at 8:30 a. m., said:

"The President had a quiet night. There is no fever, but his weakness increased. The President is fully conscious."

A cordon of black-shirted schutzstaffel (picked Nazi guardsmen) was thrown about Von Hindenburg's ancestral seat early this morning.

Neudeck Castle is now sealed from the outer world by both secret police and the S. S. men, preventing correspondents from getting even a glimpse of the residence.

Official bulletins on the condition of the 86-year-old president were suspended last night with the explanation his condition had improved slightly, but the public has been warned to "expect the worst."

Nervousness appeared to be growing among the deeply concerned people of the nation. Many asked, "Why are we being kept in the dark about Father Hindenburg?"

U. S. WAR ON N. E. SMUGGLERS OPENS ON THREE FRONTS

TWO KILLED BY STUNTING CYCLISTS

By Associated Press.

Lakewood, N. J., Aug. 1—Two stunting motorcyclists roared into a church festival crowd at Holmansville and left two persons dead and 30 injured, nine seriously.

Drawn from the church by the roar of the racing cycles on the Lakewood-New Egypt road last night, the festival throng saw Milton Showell, 28, of Whitesville, and Stanley Kolerdorski, 19, of Legler, stand on the seats of their machines and remove their hands from the handlebars.

Suddenly Showell's cycle swerved and plowed through the crowd for 50 feet, leaving a trail of prostrate persons. The other machine crashed into an automobile just starting to the hospital with one of the injured.

$5000 a Month Child Guarded From Kidnap

By International News Service

Miami, Fla., Aug. 1—"The court was told why my child needs an ample income. There is nothing more that I will say about the matter," Mrs. Lucy Cotton Thomas MacGraw told International News Service today when asked how her nine-year-old daughter, Lucy, spends the $5000 a month which the mother seeks from the courts.

The money comes from the estate of Lucy's father, Edward Russell Thomas, noted sportsman. Mrs. MacGraw is the child's guardian, but has had to post a $300,000 bond.

In a move to get the bond reduced she admitted that Lucy's expenditures had exceeded the $3000 monthly limit specified by Surrogate Delahanty of New York. It's simply that the cost of living is high, the mother told Surrogate Foley in the recent action.

Mrs. Macgraw really refuses to discuss her daughter, and despite the fact that the child is with her, she blankedly denies that this is true. She explains her attitude with the following words:

"It might attract kidnapers."

Dr. Brown Heads Needham Schools

Dr. Harry A. Brown was appointed superintendent of schools in Needham to succeed John C. Davis, by the Needham school committee.

Dr. Brown, former assistant commissioner of education in New Hampshire, was for 13 years president of the Wisconsin State Teachers College.

Death Wins in Sea Gamble

Arthur H. Davis, young Reading professional diver, who died under the waters of Cape Cod Canal yesterday when his air line became tangled, is seen here recovering the body of 13-year-old Arthur McIntyre, caddy, who was drowned in the Brookline Country Club pond last June. TANGLED LINE KILLS DIVER

Block Island taking 24 lives eight years ago.

He lived at 43 Grove street, Reading. His wife was Bertha E. Card, daughter of police Lieutenant Herbert E. Card, of Everett. A daughter born a week ago was their third child.

Just what happened to bring about Davis' death none but he was in a position to know and perhaps he never knew.

He was working for the Blaksiee-Rollins Company building the approaches for the new highway bridge that will span the canal at North Sagamore below the Bourne bridge further progressed in construction.

CARRIED POWER SAW

When his wife went into the Cheste Memorial Hospital and gave birth to their new baby, he returned to the bridge job and his brother-in-law, John Card, a college student, remained at the Reading home, caring for the other Davis children, Arthur, 6, and Joan Anne, 3.

The bridge construction work is a night and day job and Davis was on the night shift.

At 10 o'clock last night, in the glare of floodlights on the big hole and in the faces of the crew tending lines and air pumps, he descended in his diving suit to the bottom of the coffer dam where the main abutment is being built.

LIFE LINE FOULED

Water in the dam was 40 feet deep. The hole itself was 80 feet deep.

Davis had sawed off several pilings and they had been lifted out by a ground crew, when the accident happened.

On his life line he gave the signal to haul away another piling and the crew drew hauled on the ropes. Something slipped and the rope sagged.

They hauled on the life line attached to Davis' suit and found it to be fouled. And the pumps could not force air through the hose.

TRAPPED BY PILING

John Ferguson, a diver off duty, was near. He was in a suit and lowered to the bottom in five minutes. When he came to the surface he reported Davis had been knocked down and trapped by the piling and that his lines were fouled around other piles.

Twice more Ferguson went down in perilously swift descents, taking jack sand other tools, but 60 minutes had ticked off the clock before Davis was freed and drawn to the surface.

Acting Chief J. Thomas Wallace with a crew of the Bourne fire department was waiting with a pulmotor. They worked over Davis for an hour and a half before hope was given up.

Medical Examiner E. F. Curry reported death due to asphyxiation, and said he would present al facts to Judge Fred Swift at an inquest in Barnstable court.

Davis was a son of Charles Davis, of Woburn. He was well known for his diving exploits and only a month ago recovered the body of a caddy who had drowned in the pond of The Country Club in Brookline while diving for golf balls.

Ronald Colman "Glad" Wife Won Freedom

Hollywood, Aug. 1—Although he has long been regarded as sentimentally interested in Virginia Peine Lehman, Chicago heiress, Ronald Colman, 43-year-old screen actor, declared today:

"I have no thought or intentions of a second marriage."

His comment surprised questioners who poured a river of interrogations at him when a cable from England announced that Mrs. Thelma Ray Colman had won a divorce.

The Chicago girl was thought to be a "sure bet." She is now appearing in the movies under the name of Virginia Pine and she and Colman had been seen together on the infrequent occasions that he attended this colony's functions.

SHYEST OF STARS

Colman has been regarded as one of the shyest of the screen stars and it wasn't known until very recently whether or not he ever had been married.

According to Mrs. Colman's testimony, her husband left her in 1924, four years after their marriage, and went from London to Hollywood. A separate maintenance agreement was effected in 1925, she said.

When informed his wife had obtained the divorce the actor said, "I'm glad."

DIVORCE LOGICAL

From the mountains where he was on a camping trip, the 43-year-old English actor telephoned his business manager, William Hawks, and authorized him to issue the following statement:

"I'm glad Mrs. Colman has instituted divorce proceedings.

"We have been separated for many years and since there was no possibility of a reconciliation, divorce was the sensible and logical thing.

Coleman's married life is something that Hollywood knew comparatively little about. In London 14 years ago, he married Mrs. Thelma Victoria Maud Dawson, better known at that time on the English stage as Thelma Ray.

HAD 3 CLEAN COLLARS

Conditions at that time were not very fortunate for him and he came to America with $57, three clean collars and two letters of introduction seeking theatrical work.

In 1922 Director Henry King "found" Colman on the stage of the Empire Theater in New York and offered him a role in "The White Sister," a flicker that was filmed in Italy. Colman's wife also had a part in it.

Two years later they separated, and for ten years they have been living apart. Mrs. Colman filed suit for separate maintenance here in February, 1925, charging she had helped him when theatrical engagements were few, only to be forgotten when he became successful on the silent screen.

The next year, in August, he filed suit here for divorce from her. Both actions were dropped before being called for trial.

Summer Students to Cruise Harbor

Professor Warren T. Powell, director of student counseling at Boston University, will conduct a group of summer students on an excursion about the harbor this afternoon. The students will visit the Army Base, Fish Pier, Navy Yards, Mystic river and Immigration Station.

The trip, arranged through the Boston Seamen's Friends Society, will be repeated Friday. Tomorrow afternoon, Miss Grace Eyrick will lead a student group through the First National Bank of Boston.

Government Drops 130 Liquor Cases

Liquor indictments against 130 Massachusetts persons, have been not pressed by United States District Attorney Francis J. W. Ford.

This action is in accordance with a recent decision by the federal government to drop all liquor cases, pending from pre-repeal days.

DRIVE ON RUM ROW WILL BE PUSHED IN AIR, ON SEA

The government moved along three lines of offense today in its fight to turn back the tide of untaxed liquor washing up on the New England shore from repeal's rum row.

Plans for a new customs fleet for patrol of Maine waters were advanced in the Treasury Department at Washington.

Reinforcement of the new radio technical group of the tax enforcement unit also was under favorable consideration.

And orders were issued for "No more refills"—a blow struck at the very root of the rejuvenated evil, the market for untaxed liquor.

$250,000 LOSS MONTHLY

Three coast guard boats, reassigned from other areas, will probably make up the nucleus of a new customs patrol fleet as a result of the discovery that the United States is losing $250,000 a month in taxes on liquor being smuggled ashore between Eastport, Me., and Long Island.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is expected to order the bolstering of the New England forces within a few days.

Federal officials, who have just completed a survey revealing the amazing rejuvenation of illegal rum traffic here are seeking a reallotment of three of the coast guard boats withdrawn from New England waters during the recent government economy slash.

Because Congressional action would be necessary to restore them in service with a coast guard crew, the Treasury department has been asked to turn them over to the customs service.

They would patrol a 400 mile stretch of coastline extending northeast beyond the United States border into the territory from which virtually all of the present rum runners come. All of the Maine coast, now virtually unguarded, would be under surveillance.

SEIZED BY RADIO RUSE

Activities of the radio technical unit were cloaked with the greatest secrecy, as Secretary Morgenthau at Washington announced his plans for the war on smugglers with his finger on the pulse of the New England situation, the most aggravating in the nation.

There are three government radio technicians already working in New England. Their job is listening in on conversations between rum ships and shore stations and trying to locate both.

The recent seizure of the rum runner, Nemada, with a 3,000 liquor cargo off Bar Harbor, Me., was a direct result of the work of the radio technicians who provided the means for one of the most dramatic government coups in the records of modern smuggling, seizing it and raiding the Narmada in her own code to proceed to a coastal point where federal men were waiting.

With a larger sea force and a larger shore force, the government hopes successfully to combat the new smuggling operations, particularly with strick enforcement of a new regulation prohibiting the refilling of any liquor container once its original contents have been emptied.

"No refills" was the two-word order to liquor manufacturers, distributors and retailers sent out by the Treasury.

If it is rigidly enforced with drastic penalties, the order will greatly reduce the market for untaxed liquor because the greatest outlet for smuggled or illegally manufactured rum is the refilled bottle on the shelves of licensed, but dishonest, dealers seeking big profits.

That is one disclosure contained in the New England survey report made by the local tax enforcement unit under Special Agent Robert J. Coyne to Secretary Morgenthau.

Smuggled and illegally manufactured rum is cheap because the government gets no opportunity to tax it.

The demand for it has put smuggling and illegal manufacture back on the prohibition plane.

AMAZED BY FINDINGS

Federal agents began an investigation of the refill racket in New England on June 16. They were amazed by what they found.

They found for one thing that New England drinkers are buying a lot of inferior liquor in bottles that originally contained high grade liquor. They found this evil to be most common in drinks-by-the-glass places, where the refilled bottle rests upon the shelf behind the bar and most often than not, is never touched by the customer.

But they also found good reason to believe that the retailer in many instances was unaware that he was selling other than what the bottle label purported the contents to be. The greed and the deceit went back further.

Somewhere the original bottles had been refilled and in some cases relabeled.

In some cases the liquor was found only slightly below the grade of that the bottle originally contained, and a very good imitation of the original besides. In many cases the substitute was rank, however—just as bad as any of the liquor turned out in the bathtub gin era.

In many instances, the government men bought suspected "refills," had the contents tested and stacked the resulting analysis up against the filed report of the government chemist at the distillery, as to the percentages of the various ingredients for the particular bottling. The differences were startling, showing beyond question that the liquor in the bottle was not that which originally went into it.

Yet in one case the contents of the refill were found only 2½ proof below the proof of the original contents. The only gain for the refiller, in this case, lay in what he saved by buying smuggled liquor which was cheap because no tax had been paid on it.

CLUB CLOSELY WATCHED

During the survey, the federal men found a large number of bottles of unstamped gin in the wine cellar of a South Shore club. The bottles were obviously smuggled goods or refills. Club officials claimed, however, that the gin was there at the time the floor tax was put into effect and from the strongbox produced enough genuine tax stamps to cover the amount of unstamped gin on hand. They said they had neglected to affix the stamps to the bottles after paying the tax.

Conditions such as these, as reported to Washington, convinced Treasury leaders that if the refill racket could be stamped out, the market for smuggled liquor, and liquor illegally manufactured here, would be cut at least in half.

SPY QUESTIONS STIR SCHARTON TAX HEARING

With testimony in the William P. Scharton $36,666 income tax abatement hearing concluded today, the Boston lawyer has been given until Oct. 1 to file a brief in connection with his abatement petition and the government has been allowed until November 1 to file its brief.

Closing hours of the case blazed with rapid fire repartee by Scharton, acting as his own counsel, and Special Intelligence Agent John Glutsch who was under cross-examination.

Glutsch has been one of the chief aces of the government in combating Scharton case. He is a World War veteran and wears the American Legion button on his coat.

It came as a distinct shock for spectators then when Scharton hurled a barrage of questions at Glutsch which tended to put Glutsch in the boots of one "von Klatsch", a German espionage agent.

Sharton's opening gun in this barrage was:

NEVER CALLED KLATSCH

"Were you acquainted with Baroness von Koenigsmark of Berlin, Germany?"

She had been a notable spy for the Central Powers just before the United States entered the war and Glutsch flushed at the query. He responded:

"That's too ridiculous."

"Were you acquainted with her?"

"I don't know anyone in Germany."

"Were you ever employed by the German government in 1915?"

"Oh, that's too ridiculous to answer."

"You were not known as von Klatsch, K L A T S C H?"

"Why, it's too . . . it's too ridiculous, too absurd!"

"I'm not asking you . . . "

"No. I never went under any name but Glutsch, G L U T S C H."

"All right, sir."

ASKED TO INTERCEDE

There was a pause, and then Scharton renewed his cross-examination. He demanded to know if Glutsch had not tried to get Scharton to take oath at a conference in Glutsch's office on Scharton's tax returns.

Finally Glutsch asked Commissioner Smith to have him intercede and prevent the lawyer from continuing his line of questioning.

Commissioner Smith said that Attorney Scharton had a great deal at stake, particularly in regard to his character, and that he would not stop the questioning.

HUSBAND HELD IN POET DEATH

Woodland, Cal., Aug. 1—A coroner's jury has returned a verdict charging Judson Doke, city inspector of San Leandro, with the murder of Lamar Hollingshead, 23, Berkeley student poet.

Hollingshead was shot Thursday on a ranch, as the outgrowth of an alleged affair between the poet and Mrs. Doke, also a writer of verse. Doke's attorneys stressed the "unwritten law."

Surrendering after shooting Hollingshead, Doke said he sought the return of his wife's letters to Hollingshead, and then demanded the student write a letter to his wife saying their love affair had ended.

District Attorney McDonald, who preferred the formal charge of murder against Doke, said:

"Before Hollingshead died he told me he had turned over to Doke the letters written to him by Mrs. Doke, and in return Doke gave the boy the letters he had written to her.

"Hollingshead said he sat down at a table and began to write the letter demanded by Doke—a message to Mrs. Doke declaring that all was over between them.

"Hollingshead said he wrote the date on the sheet of paper—July 26, 1934—and then hesitated.

"'Hurry up or I'll plug you—my finger is itchy,' the boy quoted Duke as saying.

"'I'll be damned if I will,' Hollingshead replied.

"Doke then fired and Hollingshead fell to the floor."

YOUTH FORGETS IDENTITY

Police today were trying to discover the identity of a young man, about 25, found wandering on Washington street, South End, a victim of amnesia.

Taken to City Hospital for treatment, he was unable to give any clue as to his name or address. Police describe him as 5 feet, 7 inches tall, light complexion, smooth face.

When found he was wearing dark blue trousers, white shirt, black and white sport shoes, and no hat or coat.

4 HURT IN AUTO; DRIVER HUNTED

Three young women and a man were seriously injured early today when the auto in which they were riding crashed into a pole on Tremont street near Corning street, South End, leaped the curbing and tipped over.

The victims were taken to City Hospital.

Miss Anna Finn, 20, Silver street, Jamaica Plain suffered injuries to head and arms; Miss Winifred Fleming, 20 Morelland street, Roxbury received injuries to her back; Miss Louise Harrigan, 23, Roxbury, and John Semerjian, 20, Whittier street, Roxbury, each suffered concussion of the brain.

ELY WARNS OF "SOCIALISM"

Massachusetts will have no state NRA law according to Governor Ely as he started home from Chicago on his way from the governors' conference at Mackinac Island, Mich. He warned of "Socialism."

He said the best features of the NRA were already on the state's statute books, and the undesirable features had no place in American life and should be dropped. He added:

"Not until the government stops its spending program will business be given the reassurance necessary for natural recovery."

2 Men Found Dead in Harbor, Pond

The body of an unidentified man of middle age was found floating in Port Point channel near Dorchester avenue bridge today by a group of boys who were swimming. The body was taken to the Southern Mortuary.

The body of a fully dressed Negro, about 35 years old was recovered from Scarboro pond, Franklin Park. Police said the man apparently had drowned several days ago. There was an initial "J" on his belt.

WEALTHY GIRLS GUARDED IN 'KIDNAP' PLOT

Center Harbor, N. H., Aug. 1—Four Laconia policemen, a number of private guards and at least two federal agents continued on patrol and investigation today as the "kidnap" scare was subsiding at an exclusive summer camp here housing 60 young daughters of wealthy families.

From the lips of Louis Morrow, a chauffeur for three grandchildren of the du Ponts of Delaware, came the story of the plot. Morrow is now under observation in the state hospital at Concord and the "plot" is practically discounted, but no one is taking any chances. Morrow's employer is Holaday Wood, wealthy broker from Wilmington, Del. Three Meed children, Elsie, Mamie and Ellen were supposed to be the victims of a kidnap and extortion ring, Morrow declared.

utoist Admits Reckless Driving

Palmer, Aug. 1—Bertie C. Rise of Forest Hills, L. I., pleaded guilty in District Court here to a charge of dangerous driving as the result of being involved in an auto accident in Brimfield.

His case was filed after he agreed to pay damage claims of $150, entered by the owner of the other car involved.

Veteran Chaplain Dies

Philadelphia, Aug. 1 — The Rev. Robert J. McPetridge, known as "Fighting Bob" to veterans of the World War, died here as a result of complications from shell wounds and gas. He was 58. He was chaplain of the 108th Field Artillery, 28th Division.

HERMIT DEATH WOMAN SOUGHT

Fitchburg, Aug. 1—District Attorney Norman sent State Detective Edward J. McCarthy, ace sleuth of Worcester County into the Gamvas murder case today as one clue after another failed to point the killer of the 64-year-old recluse.

James Gamvas, the victim, was found in four feet of water in the municipal swimming pool at 5:15 yesterday morning. His skull was crushed by the lethal blow of some heavy weapon.

At first robbery appeared to be the motive, but today, with the information that Gamvas had been seen many times recently in the company of an attractive middle-aged woman, who disappeared as mysteriously as she came into his life, investigators were off on a new trail.

The woman, described by one of Gamvas' acquaintances, was accompanied by a man whenever she was in Gamvas' company, it was said.

climate as exists anywhere on earth, a hospitable modern city of intense enterprise and activity. You will see the beginning of a magnificent work, the great bridge that will span the Golden Gate, through which ships from all the world sail into a magnificent harbor.

The strike is a thing of the past, all settled, almost forgotten. All classes will welcome you, eager to prove that while there are many fine places for the traveling American to see, San Francisco is the place.

This is written on a train running down the western shore of the Hudson river. Many things have happened along that stream since Hudson sailed up and gave it his name only a little while ago. Many bridges cross it, and the biggest, one single span, will soon be built at New York city.

Railroads run on both sides. Highways are cut out of the solid rock high up on both sides.

And from high hilltops here and there, far above the water, numerous new lighthouses have been erected to guide fliers. More than anything else, they would surprise Hendrik Hudson, his sailors, and the Red Indians that saw Hudson's boat and thought there could not ever be anything more wonderful.

What else will this and other American rivers see as they roll slowly down through the ages, back to the oceans, the masses of water that the sun lifts from the sea and pours into them?

Will they see their waters impounded, saved for seasons of drouth and for irrigating the nation's deserts?

Will the millions of tons of fertile soil that they now wash out to sea be taken from them and saved?

There will be many things left for enterprising men to do after NRA shall have finished its temporary emergency labors.

MRS. FRYE MAY SEEK OFFICE

Mrs. Dorothy Whipple Frye, of Brookline, daughter of the late Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, and mother of five children, may toss her feminine turban into the state political ring.

It is understood that former Mayor James M. Curley, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, has asked the Brookline woman to consider running for the Democratic nomination of state treasurer at the September primaries.

There is no woman on the ticket that the Democratic pre-primary convention drew up, although the Republicans have placed Mrs. Elizabeth Pigeon, former Boston school committeewoman, on their ticket for state auditor.

Mrs. Frye is acquainted with politics, although this will be the first time she has sought a political office in the state where her father played so prominent a role.

WOMAN FEARED LOST IN WOODS

By Associated Press

Short Harbor, N. S., Aug. 1—Belief that Elsie Kisar, 24, who left her home Friday and failed to return, was not drowned as first feared, but is lost somewhere in the woods near her home, was expressed by searchers today.

Mounted police, with the aid of a bloodhound, have been beating the woods in an attempt to pick up the girl's trail.

Yesterday the hound was taken to the spot where a pair of lumberman's rubbers were discarded by the young woman.

The dog picked up the scent and followed it to a lake, where a lady's handkerchief had been found. The animal followed the shoreline and suddenly branched northward, back into the forest.

For half a mile the dog followed the trail, then lost it.

3 MINNEAPOLIS STRIKE CHIEFS HELD IN RAID

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Minneapolis, Aug. 1—Three leaders of the Minneapolis truck drivers strike were arrested by National Guardsmen today and charged with violating military regulations and threatening to defy martial law.

Vincent Dunne was arrested during a raid by national guardsmen on strike headquarters at dawn today where they dispersed 150 strikers who had assembled to begin extensive picketing operations in defiance of military regulations.

Brown and Miles Dunne were arrested later in private homes.

Threats that martial law would be defied were made by the union in a formal statement yesterday and repeated at a mass meeting attended by 7000 persons at the parade grounds last night.

A second death was added today to the strike toll. John Belor, one of the 50 persons wounded in the disturbance of July 20, died in St. Barnabas Hospital.

Commission Merchants Warn Stock Union

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP)—Livestock commission merchants threatened today to "crack down" on the Handlers' Union to end the spreading Union Stockyards strike.

The commission men demanded that the matter be taken to the courts, just about the time members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers workmen of C. A. Burnette & Company walked out last night.

This strike was not so much of a sympathetic gesture, it was reported, as an internal dispute over seniority rights. The union said 400 men were involved. Company officials placed the number at 180.

Expected intervention of General Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator, dimmed somewhat. Present plans of Johnson, who is in Oklahoma, leave him time only for his scheduled address tomorrow at the World's Fair.

More Police Guard Nova Scotia Mines

Stellarton, N. S., Aug. 1 (AP)—Reinforcements were hurried into Stellarton today by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to prevent further riots among miners of the Arcadia Coal Company, after pickets rushed a group of six policemen, injuring two and bruising others.

Violence first broke out on the Albion property yesterday afternoon when strikers and non-strikers clashed. Several miners were injured and seven who had ignored the strike call were thrown into a nearby pond.

The strike, in protest over suspension of a miner for using profane language to a manager, has kept operations at the Allan shaft and Albion colliery at a minimum for several days.

300 Missing in Floods

Tokio, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Korean government-general announced today that more than 300 persons are dead or missing following recent floods in South Korea. The losses were estimated at about $9,000,000.

BLEEDING BOY SHOWS GAIN

His bleeding stopped after two weeks, Victor Marrota, 15-year-old East Boston boy, stricken with the rare disease, hemophilia, was reported improving at City Hospital today.

Following an injection of horse serum and two blood tranfusions, bleeding from his mouth has stopped for almost 24 hours.

If the coagulation remains another day, doctors feel that his complete recovery is assured.

AUTO TRUCK IN WILD CRASH

A five-ton truck ran wild down Selma street, East Boston, a steep incline, today, crossed Gladstone street, crashed into a house and turned over in a field.

The driver was forced to jump for his life half-way down the hill. Slipping gears caused the accident, police said.

Joseph H. Kazeeb, 24, of 31 King street, Roxbury, was the driver. He suffered minor cuts and bruises but refused hospital treatment.

7 Ducked in Pond

Stellarton, N. S., Aug. 1—Strikers clashed with working miners here and for a few minutes the battle raged beyond control of police. One miner was injured and seven non-strikers ducked in a pond.

Confidence Revival Must Be Keynote of Recovery, Says Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy

National confidence!

That is uppermost in the serious thoughts of hot weather Washington.

If either political party is looking for a good slogan and is willing to play fair on it the best word for the fall campaign is CONFIDENCE.

Children know that even the enjoyment of adventure must be taken on a background of safety.

R. W. Child

The rosy dawn theorists will hear now that, whatever new medicines they put up, the most popular of all medicines will be the elixir of CONFIDENCE.

The business man wants his year round job.

The worker wants his promises, work of brains, work of hands, purchase of goods, behaviors, even the possibility of upholding any deal—square deal, new deal, fair deal depend upon CONFIDENCE.

Taken-chance is mere luxury.

The wiser heads in hot weather, meditative Washington begin to realize that the confidence needed is not merely confidence in government.

"NO PAPA AND MAMMA"

No government ever succeeded in being a complete Papa and Mama for mankind. None ever will.

The confidence needed is the confidence that NORMAL impulses will add NORMAL recovery.

Confidence that jobs can be had.

Confidence that consumers will buy.

Confidence that banks will lend.

Confidence that raw materials can be processed.

Confidence that money will not be taken from Peter the taxpayer to pay Paul the needy while money is taken from Paul the taxpayer to pay Peter the needy.

Confidence that the government will say to industry:

"Go to work; government can't do it for you and never can."

Confidence that the wage earner will get what is fair from the only source he can ever get it—an employer who makes a fair profit from a consumer who pays a fair price.

Confidence that the constitution, which is our document of confidence, will not be rewritten by modernistic poets.

Confidence that our laws will not be composed by torch-singers.

OPEN TO ANY PARTY

This program is open to either party. It is open to the will of the public to express with UTMOST VIGOR.

This is not a laissez-faire program.

The President has led strongly through the storm of an emergency.

But when the wind ceases to blow and the sun begins to come out and the thunder stops, no magic, no rabbit from the Washington hat, and certainly no claptrap of changing the United States by bureaucratic regulations will replace work, industrial peace, production, savings, square dealing, profits, incentive for tomorrow.

MORE CONFIDENCE — LESS CURE ALL.

MORE WORK — LESS WASHINGTON.

MORE SAFETY—LESS SALVE.

This is just as open to those who are friendly to the President as to his critics and just as open to the Democrats as to any opposition, whatever its name.

Willys Pay 7 Million as Divorce Balm, Weds Again

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 1—John N. Willys, automobile manufacturer, returned from Florida today with his comely bride, the former Mrs. Florence E. Dolan, whom he married Monday in Miami.

Unwilling to discuss the pre-divorce settlement made upon his first wife, he hurried off with the second Mrs. Willys to buy a wedding present for a friend.

"I can't discuss anything about that," he said when asked about the settlement, which reports have placed as high as $7,650,000.

The manufacturer's second marriage followed a divorce decree in an action brought by his first wife.

PAPLUS ARE SEALED

Willys was ambassador to Poland from 1930 to 1932. He and his first wife, the former Isabel Van Wie of Canandaigua, N. Y., were married in 1897.

Although papers in the divorce action were sealed, it was learned the settlement includes the Willys estate at Oyster Bay, L. I. A daughter, Mrs. Virginia De Landa of Paris, also was provided for under a separate trust fund. The first Mrs. Willys is expected to join her daughter in Paris next month.

The marriage of Willys to Mrs. Dolan, former wife of Harold J. Dolan, of Kew Gardens, New York, was solemnized by County Judge W. Frank Blanton, in Miami shortly after the divorce was granted his first wife.

"WASTED LUXURIES"

Although her first husband hasn't seen her for seven years, he described the bride of Willys as a gorgeous brunette with highly expensive tastes.

'FISHERMAN'S LUCK' CONTEST
Read About It in Tomorrow's BOSTON AMERICAN

LONG'S TROOPS READY TO ACT

By Associated Press.

New Orleans, Aug. 1—National guardsmen, carrying arms under the banner of Senator Huey P. Long, faces Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's police today, ready to battle for control of New Orleans.

The city was tense, fearing the first hostile move by either side might precipitate an actual clash between the state authorities and the city police.

Senator Long, self-titled "Kingfish," moved about like a war general, "commanding" 500 national guardsmen mobilized at Jackson barracks.

The embattled Walmsley, once a friend of Long, held 400 policemen in readiness to resist any possible attempt of Long to usurp the city police power.

Almost two score militiamen held the city registration voting office which they stormed Monday night. Machine guns looked from the windows across a narrow street toward City Hall.

Governor O. K. Allen's proclamation of partial martial law, applying to the City Hall area, continued in effect.

Ward and precinct leaders of both factions muttered. Citizens stirred wife-eyed at the armed state soldiers in the voting office.

Mayor Walmsley and Senator Long lambasted each other over the radio. The whole affair pointed to the coming congressional primary in September, in which Walmsley and Long are supporting rival candidates.

ROW OVER POLICE

Along with that issue was Long's announced determination to clean up the "vice and corruption" in the city, which Walmsley interpreted as a ruse for Long to seize control of the New Orleans administration.

The main point at issue today revolved about the new police board, authorized at the recent Long-controlled legislative session to take the police power away from Mayor Walmsley.

The board, composed of representatives selected by various civic organizations, was scheduled to assume control at noon today, but the city administration obtained a court order yesterday temporarily restraining it from taking authority pending a hearing Monday.

Mayor Walmsley armed his policemen and stationed them at headquarters with instructions to resist any attempt to dislodge them.

Senator Long and Governor Allen were non-communicative about the presence of the 500 National Guardsmen at the barracks. Artillery and cavalry troops were ready for action.

LONG CALLED 'COWARD'

Mayor Walmsley in his radio address last night described Senator Long as a "cringing coward," hiring bodyguards like "an Al Capone" and said the senator would "pay the penalty as other carpet-baggers have done" if a single life be lost in defense of the city.

He branded as "lies" charges made by Senator Long in previous address that the police department was thriving on graft and that the city was overrun with gambling establishments that had to pay tribute to Walmsley.

Senator Long, in his address, reiterated his charges that "vice and debauchery" are rampant in the city and declared again his determination to clean it up.

Surfman Married in Nauset Station

In what is believed to be the first service of its kind, Miss Cecelia M. Meehan, of Braintree, and James M. Brown, surfman, were married in the Nauset coast guard station at Eastham.

The happy day marked the fourth year of coast guard work for the groom.

Drowns in N. H.

Harold Jefferson Coolidge, direct descendant of Thomas Jefferson, lawyer, bank director and man of affairs, who was found drowned on his estate at Squam Lake, N. H. It is believed he suffered a heart attack and fell into the water.

H. J. COOLIDGE DROWNS IN N. H.

Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., explorer and Harvard professor of zoology; Lawrence Coolidge, who was associated with his father in the law, and Mrs. Emily Coolidge Woodruff of New York.

Two brothers, Professor Julian Coolidge, master of Harvard's Lowell House, and John Gardner Coolidge, also survive. Two other brothers, John Randolph Coolidge, architect, and Archibald C. Coolidge, Harvard historian, died.

As a member of the old legal firm of Coolidge, Noble and Boyd, Mr. Coolidge specialized in the care of Boston trust property. He was also a director of the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, the Rivet Lathe and Grinder Corporation, the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., a clerk of the corporation of the Church of the Advent, a trustee of donations of the Protestant Episcopal Church and a member of its board of managers and a trustee of the University Associates.

TRIED SHEEP VENTURE

He was graduated from Harvard College in 1892, and from the Law School in 1896, and had been interested in Harvard affairs until the time of his death. He was particularly active in the acquisition of land for the university and in the investment of its trust funds.

Mr. Coolidge was born in Nice, on the French Riviera, in 1870. He was the son of J. Randolph and Julia Gardner Coolidge. He was married in 1903.

The summer estate on which he died comprises thousands of acres and was the scene of Mr. Coolidge's widely publicized experiment to restore sheep raising as a major industry in New England. He brought hundreds of the animals from Wyoming four years ago to graze on his acres.

SHOWERS TO AID DROUTH AREAS

By Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 1 — Heavy showers, destined to ease human suffering in six of the nation's drouth stricken states, though not likely materially to aid crops were predicted here by the government weather bureau.

As the weather bureau pointed out the showers would bring rapidly dropping temperatures. Agriculture Secretary Wallace was joined by his under secretary, Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell, in new attacks on opponents of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

At the same time the Department of Agriculture made plans for a sheep slaughter program.

Wallace told audiences in Paducah and Hopkinsville, Ky., that modifications naturally would be made in AAA programs from time to time, while Tugwell, in a nation-wide radio address from a local studio, declared that AAA "like the marines" had the drouth situation "well in hand."

High Power Liquor Laid to Wall Street

New York, Aug. 1 (INS)—The merchandising of liquors and wines today is in the hands of greedy bankers and the influence wielded by "these Wall Street vultures" is flooding the market with "one minute and thirty second" whiskey which is being sold with fancy labels and through costly merchandising schemes, P. J. O'Mara told members of the Long Island Wine and Liquor Dealers' Association last night.

Student Gives Up in Co-Ed Beauty Death

By Associated Press

Oklahoma City, Aug. 1—Facing murder charges in the death of Miss Marian Mills, former University of Oklahoma beauty queen, Neal Myers, young pharmacy student, surrendered to his attorney here today after eluding officers for three weeks.

Tired and worn from his wanderings in three states, the 21-year old student visited his attorney, W. P. Morrison, and disclaimed responsibility for the death of Miss Mills at Norman, Okla., July 16. Myers declared:

"I committed no crime. I just couldn't face the disgrace."

Young Myers fled from Norman following the death of the girl at the apartment of Mrs. Hazel Brown, a fraternity house cook. Mrs. Brown told authorities the girl had been taking quack medicines in an effort to avert motherhood.

Myers in describing his wanderings stated:

"I didn't know where I was going. I knew I had to get out. I couldn't stand the disgrace and scandal it would bring to my family and to the Mills family."

Myers is the son of Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Myers, El Reno, Okla., whose pleas for him to surrender went unheeded for three weeks. Miss Mills was the daughter of Professor and Mrs. M. Elbert Mills, of Norman, seat of the university.

With Morrison, Myers is scheduled to appear today before a Cleveland County authorities. The fugitive said he did not know murder charges had been filed against him until Morrison told him.

Miss Mills was chosen by Fredric March, the actor, as the university's "most beautiful girl" in 1930.

She was found dead by Dr. E. F. Stephens, who had been summoned remedy was administered.

Mrs. Brown, the cook, was arrested and questioned by County Attorney Paul Updegraff. She said the couple appealed for sanctuary in the Brown home while the quack

BEAUTY'S CHILD HELD IN U. S.

By Associated Press

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 1—Little Des Cygnes L'Amour Gilcrease, daughter of a former "Miss America" and an oil millionaire, can't go to France, but she remains in the custody of her father.

That was the ruling here of Oklahoma's supreme court, pending final disposition of the divorce case of the former Norma Smallwood, 1926 Atlantic City beauty contest winner and Thomas Gilcrease, of Tulsa, oil operator.

"He just wants to take her to France so he'll be outside the jurisdiction of Oklahoma courts," Mrs. Gilcrease said, after obtaining a writ that stopped Gilcrease and the child on the eve of their departure for Paris.

The Gilcreases were divorced last May, following a trial in which the former "Miss America" was accused of, and in turn denied, indiscretions while Gilcrease was in Europe.

Walker Fails to Convict Suspect

London, Aug. 1 (INS)—Jimmy Walker, former mayor of New York, played a new role today when with his wife, the former Betty Compton, he appeared in police court as prosecuting witness against Reuben Dodge, a laborer.

Dodge was accused of stealing a clock from Betty's mother, Mrs. Florence Compton. He was discharged.

Fashion Show on Program at Beach Bluff

THE INTEREST OF SOCIETY on the North Shore centered today around the large sale for the Women's Educational and Industrial Union for which Mrs. Harold G. Cutler opened her magnificent estate, the Arbes, at Beach Bluff from 10:30 until 5:30.

The event was more in the nature of a fete than a sale with luncheon and tea being served and a marionette show, fashion show of hand knitted wear, games and grabs for diversion during the afternoon. It will be repeated tomorrow regardless of the weather.

Pretty waitresses, some of them chosen from the ranks of this season's debutantes, served at luncheon today. In the group were Miss Elizabeth Harmon, Miss Anne Kendall, Miss Persis Mason the debutante daughter of Mrs. Emery Mason of Beacon Hill, Miss Ellen Moseley, Miss Ellen Osgood, also a debutante and the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert B. Osgood, Miss Alice Tarr, Miss Bliss Thomas, Miss Catherine Walkley, and Miss Rachel Warner

Tables for the luncheon were reserved by Mrs. Edwin P. Brown, Mrs. Charles S. Butler, Mrs. B. P. Chick, Mrs. Eugene H. Clapp, Mrs. A. B. Conant, Mrs. Arthur F. Crosby, Mrs. Greely S. Curtis, Mrs. David Demarest, Mrs. Edward C. Graves, Miss Mable G. Hazen, Mrs. Arthur B. Irving, Mrs. Charles F. Lovejoy, Mrs. William Jackson and Mrs. Charles E. Ober.

Others who attended the luncheon were Mrs. P. E. Paige, Mrs. Charles A. Proctor, Mrs. Ervin D. Remick, Mrs. A. C. Robbins, Mrs. G. K. Simonds, Mrs. Frank C. Spinney, Mrs. Charles P. Stoddard, Mrs. W. F. Watters, Mrs. Renton Whidden and Mrs. Fred A. Wilson.

Tablet in Newton to Honor Boone

While no official record of his New England visit exists, a memorial tablet to Daniel Boone will be placed on Commonwealth avenue, Newton, near the Boston line.

RADIO SENDS 'BACK HOME SOUNDS' FROM ANTARCTIC

Civilized Life Echoes for Explorers

By N. F. T.

Those weekly broadcasts to Admiral Byrd and his Little America adventurers, another of which is due tonight (WNAC) at 10 o'clock, have surely been consistently unique from the standpoint of originality.

This time it seems the exploring expedition sends word that members would relish some "back home" noises, namely street car clangs, shower bath swishes, subway stop announcements and such.

They shall have it, according to the program planners, now ready to reach out by radio from away up here to said frigid zone trail blazers can hear away down there.

In addition, the boys with Admiral Byrd claim they might appreciate a little big town hotcha music and merrymaking. Thus a pick-up point and microphone is to catch some colorful atmosphere at the St. Moritz roof in New York. Where Leon Belasco music holds forth.

Cliff Edwards, the "Ukelele Ike" of the stage and screen prominence, is slated to accompany the aforementioned shower bath swishing for the South Pole transmission. Here's hoping the broadcasters are at least thoughtful enough to give those chaps a "hot shower" impression, something they would no doubt welcome with cheers.

Elaborate reception plans are being worked out at Yankee Network headquarters by Linus Travers, director of production, numerous "Hollywood Hotel" audition winners headed for Boston from 16 Eastern cities. The girls from out of town get here Monday next. On Tuesday they will match their vocal and dramatic voice talent against our Hub high hope, Alice O'Leary. There's a full year's contract at $250 per week awaiting the gal who tops 'em all in New York on August 17th.

Nimble witted Fred Allen tears a leaf from the book Walter (Virginia Judge) Kelly this evening when he "holds court" as the main basis of his "Hour of Smiles" burlesques (WEEI) between 9 and 10 o'clock.

You Hear Him on the Radio

RAY PERKINS

Ray Perkins . . . The Old Topper . . . Whose complete handle is Raymond Lamont Perkins . . . Given him in Boston . . . Where he was born . . . As the 19th century was bowing out . . . And the 20th reeling in.

Are you sit in your parlor . . . Or do you call it a living room? . . . You may not recall that good ol' Ray is a song-writer . . . As well as a funster . . . And you probably don't known anyway that Ray also is a . . . in the Army . . . In the Military Intelligence Division . . . A second lootie reserve . . . Although now is mainly in the interest of finding new sources for risibility.

Soon after his swaddling stage in Boston, Raymond Lamont Perkins was moved to New York . . . By his parents . . . Although a move to New York by anybody is a bitter blow . . . And he went to prep school between the rivers . . . And then entered Columbia . . . Where he wrote music for the variety show . . . and played also the leading role.

Out in 1917 . . . With his sheepskin . . . Ray scaling it up on the high shelf of a dark closet . . . And sitting himself down to write him a song . . . Which proved to be . . . When the dust had cleared away . . . "Tabis for Two" . . . And it brought him just $7.37 in royalties . . . Which was not so good . . . And which inspired "Bye-Lo" . . . Bringing in a bit more change.

The war interrupted all this . . . And Ray marched away . . . To find that the end of the trail was in Washington . . . With the self-same Intelligence Division . . . And Ray remained in the service for the "duration" . . . Returning to Tin Pan Alley after the war . . . and associating himself with Georgie Cohan . . . To go back . . . After a while . . . To free lancing . . . Making piano rolls and phono records . . . And appearing briefly in vaudeville . . . Running the gamut from Ray to Perkins.

From 1929 to 1925 he wrote several song hits . . . Among them "Stand Up and Sing for Your Father" . . . And "Scandinavia" . . . And "Down the Old Church Aisle."

In 1926 Ray essayed to go before the mike . . . But no like . . . And he became advertising solicitor for The New Yorker . . . A new mag. then . . . And gave this up to become a musical editor . . . For Dance Magazine.

Then he went to Hollywood . . . To head the Warner Bros. music department . . . And he wrote a number of song hits on the coast . . . Among them "Under a Texas Moon" . . . And "Lady Luck" . . . But last year went on the air in earnest . . . Even if only in fun . . . And apparently is destined to stay there.

Tomorrow's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Phil Baker, the boy who made history by running AWAY from New York instead of TO it.

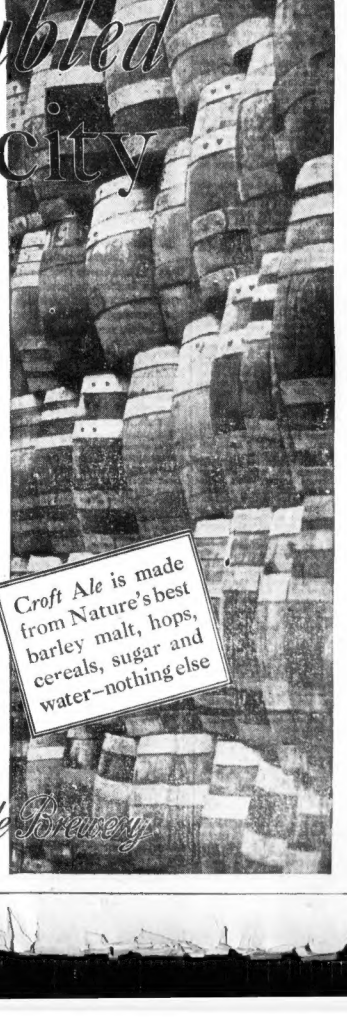
We've doubled our capacity to meet New England's overwhelming demand for Croft Ale



Adding enough equipment to virtually double the daily capacity of a thousand-barrel brewery was a costly undertaking. But there was no other way to meet New England's demand for Croft Ale.

For this brew can't be duplicated by any known shortcuts. It's the same wholesome, honest brew that Walter Croft learned to make forty years ago. It has to be brewed in just that way—or it wouldn't be fit to bear the name of Croft. Your first glass will tell you why we are so fussy about the quality of every drop. Each succeeding glass will tell you how quality alone has made this the largest selling ale in America.

Croft Ale is made from Nature's best barley malt, hops, cereals, sugar and water—nothing else

Given in Marriage

By Adele Garrison

Mary and Noel Balk at the Nightmarish Itinerary Phillip Veritzen Has Outlined for THEIR Honeymoon!

Chapter 103

"THE PLANS I have made for yours trip." These words of Phillip Veritzen had the effect of a thunder clap in the quiet room where Mary, Noel and I had come for the interview he had requested, or commanded. Their effect upon the betrothed lovers would have been ludicrous had it not held such an element of pathos. If ever in their lives lovers should be left alone it is when they are making plans for their marriage and their honeymoon. I had offered Mary a home wedding only because I knew that she often had expressed a desire to be married from the farm house, and all of us had scrupulously deferred to her slightest whim in the preparations.

None of us knew their plans for a honeymoon, save that it was to be a short one on account of Noel's engagements, and that his old car figured in the preparations.

The gift of the new car was a wonderful thing, as was that of the fur motoring coat. Also despite Phillip Veritzen's masterful way and his complacence over the fact that the people managing the lecture engagements preferred him to Noel, I knew that the extension of the honeymoon time to two weeks was welcome.

A TRIUMPHAL TOUR

But his latest announcement made a premonitory little shiver run down my back, which was justified as he went on, either unconscious of the startled, almost frightened faces of Noel and Mary, or wilfully blind to their uneasiness.

"It will be almost a triumphal tour for you," he said. "As you now, I have distinguished friends in all of the southern cities. I have assumed that you would not wish to travel north or west at this season—and I have arranged with people who live in Washington, Baltimore, Charleston, Savannah and Palm Beach to look after you adequately whenever you shall arrive there. Of course, you will be so short a time in each place that I imagine your trousseau, my dear, will be adequate for all functions, if not, I give you carte blanche at any shops you wish on the way."

"At Palm Beach I have arranged for a week's stay for you at my villa down there. The servants have been instructed to be in readiness for you, and to do everything they can to make you comfortable. Everything will be open to you, and you may fly, swim, fish, sail, dance and motor, as you please. And for incidental expense, my dear boy, it gives me great pleasure to give you this."

He had been fiddling with his wallet as he spoke, and he now held a check out to Noel. As the boy looked at it he gasped, and if Mary had not caught it, the slip of paper would have fallen from his fingers.

"This is too munificent sir," he stammered.

"May I look at it?" Mary asked demurely.

"My dear child!" Mr. Veritzen's wave of the hand was magnificent in its condescension.

"Three thousand dollars," Mary read in an awed tone. "For incidental expenses!"

"Gasoline, meals in transit, souvenirs, tips — little things like these," Mr. Veritzen explained largely. "Wherever you go, your main expenses are provided for. Well! How do you like my plans?"

DISREGARDING WISHES

My soul made obeisance to the two young things as they turned apparently grateful and enthusiastic faces toward the man who, in this munificent planning, had chosen only what his own flamboyant nature would have liked, forgetting that to simpler tastes and to true lovers desirous of solitude, the first part of his program was a nightmare, and the last, far from an ideal honeymoon.

But both from ordinary gratitude for an extraordinary gift, and from the remembrance that both their future careers were to an unusual extent in the hands of this man, they knew that they must agree to whatever he planned, and they were philosophical enough to put the best face possible upon their acquiescence.

It is perfectly marvelous, Mary said. "You are far too good to us. I am afraid we shall not know how to behave in such magnificence."

"I am counting on both of you to do me credit," he told her, and I by no means sensed a note of trainer touch a spirited with a spur.

"I shall try to do you credit, sir," Noel said, "and I have no words to thank you."

"Don't try," his father said. "And now I will steal back to the cribbage game for a little while. May I ask you to stay somewhere near here, Mrs. Graham, so that when I next can slip away, I may see you about that other little matter?"

"I will be here," I told him. Then he was gone, leaving Noel, Mary and me staring at each other.

FAITHFUL BEAUTY FRIEND, COCOA BUTTER, IN NEW GUISE AS EMOLLIENT

Lively Autumn Prints for Both Older and Younger Sets

Tweed-printed acetate in rich, soft autumn colors will easily take its place among your best friends—you'll love it for its resistance to grime, its opposition to wrinkles, and because it is in the first rank of fall fashions, with all the charm of a tweedy appearance and the comfort of silk. If you're in the size 36 and over group, you will appreciate this model, specially designed with you in mind. Notice the clever border treatment on jacket, sleeves, belt and V-neck. From a Boston shop; see next paragraph for details.

Pert youth will take to a corded silk, black and white, with impudent buttons on the jacket, and brilliant jade green velvet ribbon tucked around the chin in an individual manner. The jacket is a clever contradiction—short bolero in back, jerkin length in front. This frock, in misses' sizes, and the other in larger sizes—both with good intentions toward your budget, since little more than a five dollar bill takes either—are in a Boston shop; for information, phone Annice Brink, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Russian Women Haywire Over Clothes

By Sheilah Graham

RUSSIA is enjoying another revolution—and when I say "Enjoying" I mean enjoying.

This time it's the ladies—bless their hearts. They have gone on strike. They have refused to wear the shapeless garments into which they have had to force their forms for—they say—far too many years.

For once the Soviet "government has to acknowledge itself beaten. At first it tried to tackle the dress revolution by instituting a Soviet school of fashion. So what happened?

The female Russians placed their thumbs to their noses, made several rude sounds and sent emissaries to Paris to get the lowdown on what the well dressed women were wearing.

With a gurgle of joy each Soviet woman, miss and madam, fashioned one such garment for herself and blissfully intimated that the fashion dictators of the U. S. S. R. could go to perdition for all they cared.

I'll say this for the Russians. They know when they are beaten. After a few more feeble protests they accepted the bloodless, but none the less decisive, female fashion victory.

Happily, they were in ignorance of what they have let themselves in for. Not only will there be an epidemic of that bourgois emotion known as "love," but the red ladies are liable to go haywire over their clothing problem like the ladies in all other parts of the world.

If I'm not mistaken—I sincerely hope I am—we girls will be wearing what look like inverted soup basins, in a couple of months' time.

It's a good thing for the Soviet gentlemen that the Soviet females were not fashion conscious at the time of the terrible Empress Eugenie hat epidemic. They would have all died of laughter.

Paris, the place where most of the crazy fashions are born, has just conceived a couple that are a little more crazy stranger than usual—which is saying a lot.

At the Grand Prix race track the other day most of the femmes were clutching form cards with blue tinted fingernails.

It's taken us about ten years to get our males used to the blond red variety so now the French have to start blue ones! We'll be saps if we follow them —you said it mister—we'll be saps all right!

"Hair must match the dresses" is another unpleasant piece of Parisian news. The most popular color for dresses is mauve. I leave you to your own epithets regarding mauve haired women!

Fancy Ice-Box Emergencies

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Wednesday morning broadcast over Station WAAB

WHETHER your refrigerator runs by motor or whether you are accustomed to replying to the ice man's "Any ice today, lady?" you'll find that it's more than a piece of furniture—it's a friend. It will not only rescue the perishable, and make your world safe for entrgencies, but it will actually perform some of your work for you!

Just as you would repay any friend in kindness, follow the golden rule for your refrigerator. If it is run with ice, keep it well-filled; don't let the ice supply get too low and never cover it with a cloth or paper. Be sure your ice-box is well-insulated, well-drained and has air circulation. If it is an automatic refrigerator, keep it at an average temperature, neither too low nor too high. And be sure to give it a frequent cleaning out and when you defrost it give it a bath with warm water in which a little baking soda has been dissolved.

Don't ask your refrigerator to crowd its shelves with foods that don't belong there. Dates, for instance, should never be kept in the refrigerator but in their clean little boxes; bananas, also a tropical fruit, should be left to ripen at room temperature. Keep vegetables in covered dishes and wrap in parchment paper any bits of foods—such as bananas and halves—you wish to keep. Keep liquids covered to prevent spilling.

Above all, use your refrigerator. Let it keep a batch of ice-box cookies on hand; a jar of frosting, sauce or mayonnaise ready for emergencies; let it keep salad-makings cold, and pre-cooked dishes fresh; and let it make some delightful cold salads and desserts that look so petty and taste so good!

ARABIAN ROLL

1 cup heavy cream
2 cup pasteurized dates sliced
½ lb. marshmallows
3 bananas, diced
½ lb. walnuts
8 graham crackers, rolled

Whip cream, fold in finely-cut marshmallows, dates, bananas and walnuts. Shape mixture into roll 3 inches thick. Roll crumbs which have been spread on waxed paper; chill in refrigerator 3 to 4 hours; slice about 1 inch thick. Top with whipped cream and cherry.

Keeps Skin Smooth and Satiny, Is Excellent for Arm or Body Massage

(Posed by Elizabeth Young)

By Juliet Shelby

YOU ALL, perhaps, know the merits of cocoa butter. For years doctors, beauticians and beauty editors have lauded its efficacy for keeping the skin smooth and soft, to prevent sunburn, for massage of the body where more flesh is desired, to relieve chapped skin, and for similiar home treatments.

Although cocoa butter has been a home remedy for years, many women object to it because in its original form it is not the most pleasant formula to use. So realizing this, but keeping in mind its efficacy, an enterprising drug house of wide repute, created a cocoa butter cream. This cream, actually, is a highly-refined version of the original product. And through its metamorphosis from a drug to a splendid cosmetic, the product has lost none of its virtue.

Cocoa butter now comes to you in a very attractive jar, in a rich white creamy consistency, for a remarkably low cost. You would pay three times its price for an equal amount of a good cold cream or nourishing cream. And I take that into consideration when I recommend that you use it every night to massage parts of your body.

Those of you who wish to enlarge your bust may try this simple treatment. You cannot, however, expect overnight results. Be persistent with your treatments for a month or two if you want satisfaction.

In the morning and at night, bathe the bust in warm, then cold water. Then massage with this cocoa butter cream, using gentle, upward movements to strengthen the ligaments as well as nourish the skin. The cream will be absorbed by the skin, and you need have no fear of ruining your pretty undertihings.

To nourish other parts of the body, apply the cream after a warm bath. The skin on your legs and arms will respond after a few treatments.

If your skin is dry and rough from sunburn, you can restore it to its natural texture by using this cocoa butter cream daily. Apply the cream gently until the burn has disapeared and then massage in the ordinary manner.

If you are interested in learning the name of this cream and where it is sold, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Juliet Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston. Should you prefer phoning, call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000.

Formal Dinner Setting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. For a formal dinner, the cloth being white eyelet embroidery and lace medallions, is it proper to put a green satin under-cloth and green candles with, say, lilies-of-the-valley as the centerpiece, so that the green will show through the lace and so forth? Or would gold satin underneath, with gold color candles and jonquils or yellow roses as a center be better?

A.

1. It is in far better taste not to use any colored linen under your lace-and-embroidered cloth. This went out of fashion with fringed, silk candleshades on the table candles. Use your cloth with no lining under it, letting the wood of your table show through, or, if the wood of your table isn't of particularly attractive shade to show through, use a white lining. Since your cloth is white, you should use white candles for your formal dinner. Either white or light ivory candles are demanded for a formal dinner table. Colored candles are appropriate only for the informal table or for special "feature" occasions. Your centerpiece of lilies-of-the-valley, or of jonquils and yellow roses would be charming.

Rose Water Freckle Lotion

Question: Can you recommend a bleach that will do away with my freckles and sun-spots?

V. W., Natick

Answer: Freckles arwe sometimes removable and sometimes not. The following lotion is as good as any. Prepare it yourself:

Mix and apply with sponge twice daily.

Skin Rash

Question: My eleven-year-old daughter has a skin condition that closely resembles acne. Can you give me some helpful information?

E. R., Braintree

Answer: You might possibly be mistaking a child rash for acne. I suggest that you feed your daughter plenty of fresh fruit or stewed fruit, green vegetables and bread made of wholewheat, graham or bran. Also any meat that she likes, providing it does not have to be fried. Buttermilk is better for her than fresh milk. Do not let her eat candy or sweet deserts for a month or longer. A little good peppermint or ice cream should satisfy her.

Wash her face every morning and evening with warm water and pure vegetable oil soap or a pure castile soap. If it does not require soap all of the time, just wipe it off with warm water.

Four-Fine No Trump Convention Needs Skill

By Josephine Culbertson

The value of any convention lies, of course, in its meticulously correct application. Most Bridge players are familiar with the great majority of standard Contract conventions, but, unfortunately, few use them shrewedly. In the handling of the Four-Five Notrump Convention, for instance, both common sense and delicacy are required. Merely because a partnership determines that it holds all four Aces and certain specific Kings, it does not necessarily follow that it can successfully contract for a Grand Slam. Distribution is almost always a vital factor—and one the true expert never overlooks. Today's hand is a case in point.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♢ (1)	1♠	3♠ (2)	Pass
4♠ (3)	Pass	5♢ (4)	Pass
5♠ (5)	Pass	5 N T (6)	Pass
6♠ (6)	Pass	Pass (7)	Pass

(1) The correct Opening bid. The higher ranking of South's two shaded minor suits should be chosen.

(2) This Force is correct despite the lack of 2½ honor tricks. The 5-4-3-1 distribution of the North hand, the diamond fit, and the possession of intermediates in tens and nines justify the shaded Forcing Takeout.

(3) South is almost strong enough to jump to five clubs but since the bidding cannot die under game, he refrains from this course to give the partnership more opportunity for the interchange of information. The four-club bid, of course, is a strong bid in that it automatically shuts out three no-trump.

(4) South, of course, does not know that his partner made a slightly shaded Forcing Takeout. He does know that there is a fit in the two minor suits and that a Grand Slam is a possibility. Holding two Aces and a King of a bid suit, South makes the conventional four-no-trump bid.

(5) A compulsory response. Even though North realizes that he has shaded his Forcing Takeout and accordingly is not anxious to reach a Grand Slam, he cannot fail to respond with five no-trump, holding the remaining two Aces.

(6) Despite the fact that all four Aces have been located, South still does not wish to bid seven. North can have all of his previous bids and still lack the King of diamonds, or, even holding the King of diamonds, have a worthless doubleton or tripleton in hearts. South feels that since he has invited the Slam it is up to North to bid seven.

(7) North, too, refrains from bidding seven, even though he also knows that all the Aces are located. North quite correctly decides that if the South hand contained the Kings of both minor suits and the Queen in one of them, South could undoubtedly have bid seven himself after North's earlier Jump bid.

North and South were both correct in their decisions not to bid seven. The fulfillment of a contract of seven would depend upon the diamond finesse plus the drop of the club Queen.

In the play, after a spade Opening, North laid down his Ace of clubs and then led the ten-spot. He noted that his own hand was of a 4-3-2-1 pattern, containing a singleton, and quite correctly decided that according to the Law of Symmetry there was a strong probability that the clubs would not break 2-2.

Since West had overcalled when vulnerable it seemed quite likely that the West hand contained a singleton club. North accordingly passed against the Queen of clubs in the East hand and was thereby enabled to avoid the loss of a trump trick. Thus even though the diamond finesse subsequently lost, the contract of six-odd was fulfilled.

Tomorrow's Hand

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Pandora Tells You

DEAR PANDORA:

Please give me your advice. I know my tale of woe is not unusual but it is a painfully new experience to me.

My husband is a successful advertising man. Handsome and debonaire, he is always the life of the party and greatly admired by women, but he has always been faithful to me. He spends all his evenings home and does just what I tell him to do. That is, until recently. It seems that about a month ago, three girls in the office where he works organized a "club," or so they called it, and went to the restaurant every noon where the men ate, just to see what they could get to pay for their lunches. Well, my husband, being as he is so full of fun and all, took them to lunch. He told me about it that night and I just laughed it off, of course, although it cost him about five dollars.

WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED:

If your husband is hard of hearing, be sure it is not because of inner anything. If he is still taking three to luncheon, your trouble are bubbles with a rainbow glint. I think that any gentleman, alone, may prove fascinating. But, in the face of three young women, Clark Gable at the third luncheon would appear trite or awful to one of them. Don't worry.

Thirsty? Enjoy

"SALADA" ICED TEA

"Fresh from the Gardens"

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Greetings! Here's a chance for Fledgling members to become Eagles. Today the Junior Birdmen of America inaugurate its first step in membership ranks! All boys and girls, who have maintained affiliation with the organization for three months or more may hereafter take the official Junior Birdmen test for Eagle rank and secure, on passing the test, an Eagle bar to attach to his or her wing-pin such as appears in this column.

Every member who joined the Junior Birdmen on or before May 1 is now entitled to take the test. Read every word and study upon each question. Remember that there are the following: Seven important, patent wire, bamboo, tissue paper. What is used to smooth the edges of a balsa wood? (5 points each question.)

2—What is a two number model? What is a three number model? (5 points each question.)

There you are members. Those are the 20 official questions which you will find on your special Eagle membership test question sheet.

Mark of 70 Is Needed

At the end of each question we gave you the number of points that would be allotted the correct answer. A member must receive 70 points in order to receive his or her Eagle membership bar.

Remember, when requesting a question sheet that you must be a member in standing for at least three months and be sure that you enclose a three-cent stamp to cover the cost of return mailing and postage.

Let's see who will be the first member to gain this Eagle rank bar.

12 Win Awards in Joke Contest

Bert Bratko, 13, of 42 Smith street, Allston, whose number is 4163 and Carl Renholm, No. 1088, of 270 Washington street, Cambridge, are today's winners of one dollar each in the Funnybone contest.

Ten other Junior Birdmen, who submitted good jokes, will each receive a pair of tickets to the Tremont theater. The tickets will be good on either Saturday or Sunday, Aug. 4 or 5, when "Young Eagles", an exciting aerial adventure picture of two Boy Scouts, will be shown in addition to two feature films "Whoopee", starring "Eddie" Cantor, and "Pilgrimage". The winners should arrive before noon Saturday or before 3 p. m. Sunday "Young Eagles".

Those who receive the ten pairs of tickets are: John Bunevich, of 177 Windsor street, Cambridge; William Sarafiolo, 121 Bolton street, South Boston; Violet Gamble, 14 Maple street, Newburyport; James McLaughlin, 25 Round Hill street, Boston; Edward McCarthy, 9 Royal road, Mattapan; Edward W. Entry was:

Billy: Yeah? Call the cops. Tell him he's in for a long stretch.

And Carl's funnybone was:

"Boys, I know a young business man who intends to start at the top and work down."

"How silly!"

"No, it isn't. He's going to be a parachute jumper."

Who will be the 12 winners next week? Keep sending in your aviation jokes and next week two more winners of $1 each and 10 winners of a pair of tickets to the Tremont Theatre will be named.

The Junior Birdmen whose picture is printed today is James Tierney, 13, of 30 Lee street, Cambridge.

Gum Advertiser Sets New Record

A record for consistent advertising is being set today by the Wrigley, Jr. Co., with the appearance of that concern's 435th executive advertisement in a newspaper. Advertisements of the chewing gum manufacturer have been appearing on the comic page of this newspaper several times a week since September, 1932.

"Say it quick and say it often" is the strategy behind the Wrigley Co.'s policy of running striking little gum advertisements consistently, week after week, throughout the year.

CAST INTO EDEN -:- By Henry C. Rowland

Linda and Jerome Find They Aren't Eager to Have Rescue Party Take Them Off Isle

CHAPTER XXV

The captain alone hung on to his courage, and to his carbine. He threw the weapon to his shoulder. Before he could aim and fire Jerome dived at him from behind, football fashion

As they went down together the carbine was sent spinning aside. Jerome grabbed at the butt of the revolver slung in its holster and wrenched it out. Something warned him that if Papa Gorilla were to be wounded all of them would be torn to fragments.

Maddened by this sudden violence, Papa Gorilla was seized by a sudden frenzy. He waddled forward clumsily on his short thick bowed legs, not very fast but still roaring.

He came to where Linda lay, too terror paralyzed to scramble out of the way, and stopped over her knee and shoulder. With no perceptible effort he tossed her about 20 feet up on to the sloping thatched roof of the verandah.

Still advancing, he came to where the captain and Jerome lay on the ground. They had separated. Neither of them moved. They lay breathless, watching the monster.

BRUTE UNCERTAIN

Jerome had secured the captain's revolver but he did not attempt to shoot. Something in the ponderous deliberation of the enormous brute seemed to indicate a dazed uncertainty as to its next act. Jerome was hoping that it might stop, stare and growl, then turn and make off into the jungle with the same curious sheepiness that it had shown the day when it had come upon them close to the Tree of the Forbidden Fruit.

Instead, the gorilla reached down and took the captain by an ankle. Still the man did not stir nor make a sound. The gorilla took the other ankle. He appeared then to pause as if to reflect. Odd little rumbles came from his profundity of chest.

It struck Jerome ridiculously, considering the terror of the situation, that Papa Gorilla was grumbling at some distasteful duty he felt called on to perform, and much inclined to shirk.

Suddenly, and with the same coordinated lightness with which he had tossed Linda to a point of comparative safety, Papa Gorilla heaved back and swung the captain round his head. Jerome expected to see the man shattered on the earth. Instead, Papa Gorilla held him at full swing. The captain splashed out into the pool. Jerome ran up and began to recite The Rhyme of the Nancy Bell. The big animal turned and stared at him thoughtfully. Jerome started on the second verse, using care about his diction. Papa Gorilla's close set eyes rolled about, then roved along the edge of the jungle.

The fetch flanking him as usual, crouched and began to scratch her bosom. He paid no attention to her. His alert eyes had picked out the opaque form of the blackfaced creeping in the thicket. Papa Gorilla gave a roar and started for him. It was as if he had sought and found a pretext. There was a sudden rush and scurry, a prodigious crashing of stiff foliage, and the perfunctory chase took itself off.

"REPEAT YOUR CHARM"

The captain had clambered on his feet and was standing in water chest deep. He was swearing softly to himself. Jerome called to him in a low voice: "Run for the beach before he comes back! Hurry, or you are lost!"

The captain came wading toward him. "I hear some others over [illegible] Linda leaned from [illegible] perch. "Tell that picture pirate I am going to scream. He saw what happened when I screamed before."

Jerome translated then added "These giants believe that she is Senora Eve." He was not quite sure about the correctness of that [illegible] it seemed better than [illegible] Madonna.

"Santa Maria, but they are right! She is beautiful as the dawn. Tell her not to scream, senor. I go."

He waded out and went down the stream before the darkness should be complete in the lee[illegible] shade. Jerome got up.

"Hurt?" he asked Linda.

"No. Papa tossed me up here as gently as Dad's farmer used to toss me on the hay cart when I was a little girl."

"He wanted to protect you."

"Yes. He did love a fond of me. He did precisely what Mama Gorilla and the other do when a male steer got temperamental with her. She tossed the baby into a high [illegible] where it was safe from [illegible] horns."

"Well Papa's fits of temper are brief. Because he can't remember what it's all about perhaps. We are probably rid of those monsters. It doesn't matter, as they have left their guns."

He walked to the edge of the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] tossing a rugged gal like you up on a roof."

LET 'EM CARES

He told her then what he had learned from the [illegible] ancestors and [illegible] around [illegible] Tree [illegible] how we get to San Cristobal [illegible]

"Who owns this place?"

"They didn't say. Only that it had an evil reputation."

"Well, it will have a worse one now." She laughed. "And I'd rather not think what ours is apt to be."

"That's the least of our cares right now. This skipper is going to San Cristobal and report that he has located us here held captive by a regiment of wild giant apes, and claim the reward. The quarantine ought to be lifted by this time, and Tommy will mobilize a relief expedition."

"We don't want that," she said [illegible] The Gorilla a Bride."

"Rather less of a social asset than a write up in the role of Eve," she admitted. "We had better be on our way."

"No question. As soon as it gets light enough well drag the dory [illegible] shove off, I'll get the mat and rig the sail. When the breeze comes [illegible] we can [illegible] make San Cristobal in twenty-four hours."

"Let's see what's in the chests. Clothes are important since we don't want the sort of publicity you've mentioned."

"Time enough in the morning. We had better get some sleep."

"Safer than ever. You could drive those apes back here with the shambok and the gorillas keep away for hours and hours from us."

"The more I see of gorillas," Linda said, "the more I'm convinced [illegible] are [illegible]

"Maybe [illegible] Papa gorilla has the soul of a poet. He would rather listen to verse than destroy a Pan-American."

"Yes. All he did was to 'pan' him. [illegible] pulling me out of harm's way when the [illegible] my head [illegible] the grass [illegible]

She said presently when they were both on their beds of fern:

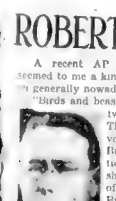
This Is Life
by
ROBERT E. ROGERS



Robert E. Rogers

A recent AP dispatch from Washington seemed to me a kind of symbol of what is going on generally nowadays.

"Birds and beasts become an issue today between two government bureaus. The Bureau of Biological Survey accuses the Reclamation Bureau of 'senseless destruction' of areas that afforded shelter for wild life. Survey officials said the Reclamation Bureau has drained lakes and marshes, taken water from streams indiscriminately for irrigation purposes, and destroyed vast wild life areas.

"The chief of the Reclamation Bureau declined to talk about the matter, but other officials condemned a system which, they said, made large areas useless for either agriculture or wild life. 'Under the present system we take 10 steps forward for every step ahead.'"

This is not unlike the spectacle presented by the AAA teaching our farmers how to destroy planted crops, plough under cotton and slaughter livestock, all the while the Department of Interior is still sending out thousands of expensive publications informing the farmer how to practice intensive farming so as to get more wheat and cotton and corn per acre. So here we see that the crane for greater agricultural acreage, of which I wrote a few days ago, has not only succeeded in increasing the aridity of the plains farms and ruining the top soil for all time, but has (incidently) done much to destroy the vanishing wild life, the existence of which may be useful to human life.

The first fact all this indicates is the old fact of the utter waste, muff, envy and incompetence to be found in the present organization of the bureaus of the various government departments. Their functions frequently overlap; the ideas of one bureau either parallel or supplement or contradict and undo the ideas of another bureau. Our departments and bureaus have grown by sheer blind proliferation at enormous expense and tremendous lost motion and actual harm.

More serious, perhaps, is that much of this loss and damage is caused by industrious and well-meaning government workers trying to apply science while they do not entirely understand. The American craze for turning the pure science of discovery and experiment into the applied science of practical achievement. We are set in a patient enough to wait until the ways of nature are ready under cool. At once we want to be doing something. The result is often tragic. Many an American has wriggled with annoyance, reading Valley-Radot's "Life of Pasteur," to see how the slow, conservative, methodical skeptical French made Pasteur prove his thesis to the hilt, not merely in the laboratory but by practical work on a large scale, before they would drop their inherited ideas and adopt his. The more one thinks about it, the more one is convinced that the French were right. Pasteur's ideas, turned over to the American civil bureaucrats, much better trained in publicity and propaganda than in science, with some political appointee at their head, would, in a few years, have something to make the front page, might have done lots of damage. For Pasteur's ideas had dynamite in them. Gorgas did well with his yellow fever research under army control, you will say. Perhaps that is because the army tradition is not unlike the French tradition. It is aristocratic and it is conservative, two admirable habits. If only the Department of the Interior, with its craze for pamphlets and its yen for Democratic utility and its lack of co-ordination, might learn something of the Mandarin method!

Lastly, of course, we simply do not as yet know anything of the limitless powers of Nature. The tiny piece of her realm we do pretend to understand seems to be governed by law. But beyond there is Newton's boundless ocean, that realm in which the laws we understand may not function. We guess that there is some kind of compensation in Nature that we haven't got the hang of yet. We begin to guess that we ought to be careful about introducing one parasite to destroy another, lest the new immigrant get out of hand and do damage we cannot repair.

Insect and parasite and bird and seed and flower and crop and tree all form one limitless pattern of underneath-of complexity, which is the balance and the compensation dreamed out and perfected by Nature. If we with our fragments of knowledge try to "help" with a wrench that balance for some quick and immediate purpose of our own who can tell what merciless revenges a logical and unemotional Nature may take?

Nature, it is true, must be kept in place lest she smother man in her vitality. But man with his science and his ingenuity and his "help" may thwart Nature (and therefore himself) in ways entirely unexpected. There is a little English poem which I cannot quote, called "Stupidity Street"—the street where the singing birds are caged for sale, while out in the country the parasites are killing the wheat—

Till there is nothing for people to eat

Sold in the shops of Stupidity Street."

As usual, the poet has the last word over the scientist.

ELY TO SET OFF ANTI-CURLEY FIREWORKS

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Governor Ely will furnish the fireworks in the Cole campaign against former Mayor Curley for the Democratic nomination for governor.

The strategy of the Walsh-Ely-Cole group is all worked out. Ely will do the heavy firing and Senator Walsh will take over the task of building the candidate up.

Those close to the governor declare that the chief executive is in rare form and is looking forward to coming to grips with the former mayor. The broadsides between these two seasoned gladiators promises to put campaigns in recent years far in the shade.

GOVERNOR DUE HOME

The governor is scheduled to return from the Middle West tomorrow to enter the lists as active champion for his gubernatorial cabinet list.

As was expected, former Mayor James M. Curley, himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination, called Governor Ely for the latter's attack on the New Deal. This was delivered at the governors' conference that Massachusetts chief executive has been attending in Michigan.

Until sentiment has crystalized on the Curley complaint, Governor Ely will keep silent. But the initial blast from the governor will, it is understood, be not long deferred. If the former Boston mayor has fairly well sold the idea that he defiled of nomination at Worcester because of a stipulating by Walsh and Ely

PLANS WAITING GAME

The record of the Ely campaign against the late Lieutenant Governor William S. Youngman two years ago indicates that the waiting game is characteristic of the governor. When the Republican candidate had passed his plank that Ely's administration was responsible for the building of roads, Ely waded in and the charges to rout

WON'T ATTACK CURLEY

The only hitch in the line form of the Walsh support. It will come, insiders say, in praise for Curley. Ely's group, holding him up as the candidate "with the best chance to win against Bacon." Those who are looking for Walsh to attack Curley, it is apparent, will be disappointed.

And if reports from reliable observers in various parts of the state mean anything, Governor Ely and Senator Walsh have their work cut out for them in advancing the Cole cause.

RUMPUS OVER CLUB

Meanwhile controversy raged over the Franklin D. Roosevelt Club indorsement of General Cole. Gradually it resolved into the question just what clubs was the authorized Franklin D. Roosevelt Club.

Henry J. Dixon, as president of the Franklin D. R. Civil Club which he claimed was formed in 1931, announced the Cole approbation. Monday night Yesterday Daniel McCarthy, head of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Club of Massachusetts repudiated Dixon.

McCarthy asserted that his club, the "only lawfully chartered Franklin D. Roosevelt Club in the state," was not supporting an in the primaries and that it would not. McCarthy issued a copy of the club's incorporation papers, dated 1934.

Missing Wakefield War Vet Found

Missing from his home on Broadway, Wakefield, for a week, Thomas J. Gibbons, 36, was found wandering in Woburn square by police. Police believe he is suffering from the effects of being gassed during the World War.

Governor and Mrs. Joseph Ely of Massachusetts place their approval on two of the Massachusetts entries in Sears, Roebuck's nation-wide contest for America's most beautiful baby at the World's Fair in Chicago. Pictures of the lucky 49, selected from a field of 111,000, will be on display at the Sears, Roebuck building at the Fair, where, by popular vote, the winner of the $5000 cash award and $5000 educational policy will be determined. Governor Ely and wife are enjoying a visit to the Century of Progress exhibit.

CATHOLIC ROLE IN FILM DRIVE

Boston League of Decency representatives, including Rev. Russell M. Sullivan, S. J., Cardinal O'Connell's spokesman, and Joseph M. Kirby, K. of C. official, will announce today what part Catholics are expected to take in the drive for clean motion pictures.

The pronunciamento, however, hinges upon receipt of a letter from Martin F. Quigley, delegate of the Hays association and of the board of the Organized Motion Picture Industry.

Father Sullivan declared that Quigley had promised to send a written statement of what part the movie magnates were willing to pay in a "new deal" for pictures. He explained:

"That written statement should be here no later than today. When it is received, we will make our statement on the situation.

Kirby, who is regional director of the central committee on motion pictures for the Knights of Columbus, declared that the platform the K. of C. would adopt also hinged upon the contents of the Quigley-Hays letter.

Methuen Men Held in Postal Theft

Charged with embezzling $940 from a sub-postal station in Lawrence, Joseph J. Urbano of Milk avenue, Methuen, was under arrest today.

Urbano, father of three children, pleaded not guilty before United States Commissioner Harry N. Gutterman, and was held for hearing.

Forgotten Cavern Found Under Franklin Park

Close upon the heels of the discovery of a nudist colony in Franklin Park, comes news of a subterranean cave, well over 150 feet in length and 12 feet deep, within the boundaries of the park.

Supported by 30 square columns, the cave presents a weird appearance. Some 60 years ago, the cavern was built by city engineers as an emergency water reservoir.

O'KEEFE RITES PLANNED

Major Patrick F. O'Keefe, 62, nationally known Boston advertising man, is dead at his summer home at Grandview Beach today, following an illness of several months. Funeral plans were uncompleted.

Active in political campaigns and in business for many years, Major O'Keefe coined the slogan "Say it with Flowers."

Major O'Keefe was owner and president of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, 45 Bromfield street, and a former president of the Boston Gardens.

Rhem Does a Rabbit Maranville; Toby, Dog Hero, Is Dead

Lutze and His Fatal Leanness; Johnny Welch's Enigma

By AUSTEN LAKE

THERE IS NOTHING LIKE a dose of minor league tonic to restore a major league "cut-up" to his senses. I am thinking of Flint Rhem, the seasoned veteran who lately pitched a one-hit game for the Braves and who formerly was a lover of frisky beverages.

Austen Lake does things like that

Because early last June, Branch Rickey of the Cardinals, who detests the odor of a drunkard, suddenly slipped Rhem down the trap to Syracuse, "as an example," he said, "to the right-thinking element" among the Cardinal players.

Well, it razed old Flint, who is verging 33 now, back on his hocks so that he took moral stock of himself and pledged total abstinence. Also he rise up his spine fur and refused to report to Syracuse. So, in the end the Braves got him, although it was a complete surprise to Manager Frank Frisch of the Cards, who didn't hear about it until the trade was made by Rickey, who

RHEM'S SPIRITUAL REVIVAL is akin to that which took place with Rabbit Maranville back in 1927, when he was pretty much of a horrible example to the youth of the country—although a favorite among the grown-ups.

Rabbit was panned to find, one day, that Brooklyn had shipped him "somewhere East of Suez"—Rochester, I think. And, unlike Rhem, Rabbit went—partly because Rochester was home and mostly because the other major league clubs regarded him as too shopworn to fuss with.

So the Rabbit took inventory and decided to eschew rum and late hours. To such good effect that within the year he was snatched back to the Cardinals and helped them to win a pennant. It required great moral bravery, too, because Rabbit had been a steady swiggler bordering on a lush.

E. H. McKechnie, whose Scotch Presbyterian code forbids spirituous liquids as works of the devil, has reformed more drinkers than any other man in baseball. Maranville and Rhem are his masterpieces. Grover Alexander, who was beyond redemption, he simply court-martialed, dismissing him into outer darkness.

TOBEY, THE FAMOUS LEAD dog in Emil St. Goddard's team, is dead in Peterboro, N. H., of peritonitis.

Half greyhound with a dash of husky and a thin strain of wolf, he was famous for his muscle-cracking pace over the 200-mile log-top races at Le Pas in 1929. He led St. Goddard to every victory in the North country, a silent animal among his howling teammates, whom he disciplined as cruelly as an old-time red first mate on a tramp schooner.

St. Goddard used to sing to him on the trail, a high pitched tuneless wail, and it was a sight to see the team come swinging down the Laconia, N. H., roads, banked high with snow, Tobey's curled tail aloft, his lean jaw breaking the wind and his feet regardless of frost vapor puffing from his nostrils.

Knots of people along the way, fur-clad, pattered an applause more for Tobey than Emil, and the dog took it with the same dignified indifference that old Clarence DeMar, the Melrose marathoner, takes the handclaps of admirers as he plods down Commonwealth avenue during the B. A. A. event.

"Tobey, he is wan dawk in hunnert t'ousan' " Emil once told me. "Like Babe Rut' or Jaques Dempsee, hein?"

THE PENDULUM OF B. U. football swings to extreme. It was only last year that the policy was "player control" and games of our own size. The new policy, under the competent leadership of Pat Hanley, is for bigger games on a grander scale. B. U. plans to open with Northwestern at Chicago, coached by Dick Hanley, Pat's brother, in 1935, and the outlook is for a major college schedule.

NICK LUTZE, WHO WEARS the label of the "cleanest man" in the pro wrestling business, is meeting Bull Martin, chief filthy of the local bad men, at the Arena tonight. Lutze will win, of course, but that is not the theme of this brief.

It is a singular thing that in an industry which holds bone-grinding and muscle-wrenching as its chief charm, Lutze, orderly, orthodox and who wrestles in a manner of mournful melancholy, is Bowser's most popular exhibit and among his best money makers.

Originally, Nick came to Boston quite as an accident, when Farmer McLeod failed to keep an engagement. Lutze, living in Chicago, and doing odd-extra bits of wrestling in small town cards, came on and filled in. He was an instant hit, tall, personable, with flats and hollows where his fellows wear bulges and swells.

It is Lutze's natural leanness that keeps him from the championship class. He has trouble in holding his weight, which gradually oozes down to 190 pounds in the heat of the season. And that means lack of vitality and the necessary wearing qualities.

BUCKY HARRIS, RED SOX manager, has had many pitching problems to puzzle about this season. The latest one is why Johnny Welch, who started out by winning six straight games, suddenly doubled back on his tracks and lost seven straight. "A man can't be that good and that bad in such swift succession," Bucky said lately. The answer may be that pitching, in the first part of the season, is always ahead of the batting and that, in Johnny's case, the batting just happened to overtake him.

I AM HOPING THAT SOME major league club will pick up Moe Berg, recently released by Washington. Moe is a light hitter but a Grade A catcher. In addition, he can read nine languages, including the Arabic and ancient French, having specialized in ancient tongues at Princeton and at the Sorbonne in Paris. Furthermore he is a practicing lawyer, admitted to the N. Y. bar. Judge Fuchs of the Braves dallied with the thought of adding Moe a few days ago, but Bill McKechnie said No, he needed more punch than Moe packs. It is too bad Bill cannot use a good interpreter.

CAVALCADE IN $7500 CLASSIC AT PAWTUCKET

By Dave Wilson

Narragansett Park, Aug. 1—The Brookmeade Stable's Cavalcade, winner of the Kentucky Derby, Arlington classic and the champion three-year-old of the season, has been entered in the $7,500 added Rhode Island Handicap mile and three-sixteenths race for three-year-olds and upward which will be run on September 3, the closing day of this meeting.

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 1—Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade, with $111,235 won this year so far, will make his bid for the three-year-old thoroughbred championship to-day whether he is superior to Jean E. Widener's Peace Chance or not on the money winning list, which Mrs. Sloane may not be defeated, decided upon by both camps in the Trial Stakes on the closing day of the current Belmont gathering.

Cavalcade defeated Peace Chance in the Kentucky Derby, but Peace Chance trounced Cavalcade's stable mate, High Quest, in the Belmont stakes. High Quest is third on this year's money-winning list with $37,165, is the only horse that has beaten Cavalcade this year, nosing him out in the Preakness.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery is fourth on the three-year-old money-winning list, acquired mostly by running second to Cavalcade on several occasions. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood is ninth with $20,450.

In the two-year-old division, the phenomenal luck of the California trio in 1934 sporting events is temporarily in the ascendency.

Toro Nancy, owned by Norman W. Church of Los Angeles, won the rich Arlington Futurity to take the lead among juvenile money-winners with $44,922. Toro Nancy, however, has not been nominated for the rich Kasten stakes offering in the season and has slight chance of retaining her leadership.

YANKS CLASH WITH HOSE

New York, Aug. 1—The Yanks went after another victory over the Red Sox here today, following their two conquests yesterday over the Boston team. The Yanks figured on taking the lift today to give them a firmer hold on the American League leadership.

Led by Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth, the Yanks took both ends of the doubleheader, 11 to 2 and 2 to 1, to regain first place in the race.

Gehrig basted homers 31 and 32 of the season in the opener behind brilliant three-hit pitching by Vernon Gomez. The Yanks collected 14 hits in all, including another four-master by Saltzaver, cinching the game in the first with eight runs. Roy Johnson homered for the losers.

Ruth connected for homer No. 17 of the season in the second of the afterpiece, breaking a 1 1 1 tie. Murphy and Dashong held the Redmen to five safeties.

Lutze Meets Martin on Arena Mat

ARENA PROGRAM

MAIN BOUT

Nick Lutze vs. Bull Martin. (Two falls out of three.)

SEMIFINAL

George Myerson vs. Tony Sano. (One fall—no time limit.)

OTHER BOUTS

Bob McCoy vs. George Mann.
Rebel Russell vs. Abe Rothberg.
Dick Stahl vs. Jack Costa.
Joe Krijel vs. Harry Lewis.
Jack Ross vs. Tommy Rei.
Farmer Boy Mack vs. Roy Carson.

Leon Burbank, one of the most capable referees in the country, will be the third man in the ring when Nick Lutze opposes the rugged "Bull" Martin in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at an Arena MacLean show at the Arena tonight.

Martin protested against Al Morelli as referee. Matchmaker MacLean finally picked Burbank to officiate after a conference with Lutze and Martin.

Lutze and Martin are expected to furnish one of the best bouts of the year. Nick is the first speedy type of wrestler whom Martin represents the caveman school.

George Myerson will defend his title as world middleweight champion against Tony Sano in a fall bout in the semifinal. In special matches Bob "Bibber" Meaty will meet George Mann, while Bob Rowell will grapple with Abe Rothberg.

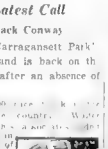
Mr. Boston Says:

Narragansett Opening
Col. Egan's Horses
Answer Latest Call

By Jack Conway

ON TO Narragansett Park! Rhode Island is back on the racing map after an absence of 2 years.



Mr. Boston from New York

The big parade of owners, trainers and horses will come from Massachusetts. There's a Rockingham Park wise made especially for the passage from Massachusetts. The same will be true at Narragansett Park.

I HAVE been looking over the entries for the opening day, and find Col. Dave Frothingham Egan's Tool Box and Radiator among the horses set to go to the post. The Colonel will probably whisper a few hot tips to me, and I'll prove myself a smart fellow by not playing them.

THE COLONEL will [illegible] breakfast at Narragansett Park during the several meeting and he can give as many a tip on Egan entries as he wishes to some 20 to 1 shot.

DAVE WILSON, who picked more winners than any other selector at Rockingham, will continue to call his shots right. Wilson's more than anybody writing racing in New England.

Comfort for Fans

NARRAGANSETT Park, about the spectators every time the comes for the opening. Last Saturday 14,000 persons were present, and accommodations for only more on the clubhouse lawn. Provision will be made to care for 20,000 more at the track.

SHARE PRICES UP IN QUIET TRADING

New York, Aug. 1—The stock market rallied today, gains running to more than 3 points in U. S. Smelting, on the hope that President Roosevelt on his return on Friday would do something to change the uncertainty in business and speculative circles.

Strength in the metals was accompanied by revival of inflationary rumors. With U. S. Smelting setting the pace, gains in the rest of the group ran up to a point and more.

Trading was at a slo wpace, however, and failed to show any important increase on the rally.

Bonds recovered with stocks. Grains were no stranger, gains running to a cent a bushel. Cotton lay steady.

U. S. Steel responded with a fractional gain, crossing 35, to the favorable earnings statement published Quinby after the close. Other issues were better in sympathy.

Atchison was still under pressure in the morning but other carrier shares were higher.

Motor stocks gave a better performance, with General Motors again in demand and Chrysler recovering about a point. Case Threshing was up a point also. A farm implement group, while duPont was strong in the chemicals. Oils were generally higher. American Telephone was tronger in the utilities.

California Packing was a feature, spurting 2 points to a new 1934 high.

Sales in U. s. m. approximated 200,000 shares.

Moderate gains were registered in quiet first-hour dealings. Rails were narrow but metals improved mildly.

U. S. Smelting rose 3¼. Wright Aero added 5 and Inland Steel was up more than 2.

Issues up 1 to 2 included American Sugar, Shrysler, Bohn Aluminum, California Packing, Case, du Pont, Johns Manville, Union Pacific and Western Union. U. S Steel was up nearly a point.

Statements showing largest profits

Second quarter steel earnings lts by leading producers for that period, the several years, compiated in some measure for the lack of cheering news on the current production situation in this industry.

Some disappointment was expressed over the failure of the U. S. Steel Corp. to increase its payment on preferred stock, in view of the big profit of $4.34 a share on the senior issue earned in that period, against time since the third quarter of 1931 that anything had been earned on the Pref.

Declaration of a 25-cent dividend by Inland Steel, the first since March, 1932, drew directed attention to improvement in the earnings status of steel makers in the spring quarter.

"Iron Age," in its weekly summary, painted a rather drab picture of steel conditions at the moment, pointing out that mills were entering August with "extraordinarily small backlogs." It is estimated the current operating rate at 26 per cent of capacity, off 5¾ points from a week ago.

Electric power production recorded another gain in last week and the margin of increase over last year widened to 1.3 per cent compared with six-tenths of one per cent in the preceding week, according to the Edison Electric Institute's figures.

German marks were weak in early foreign exchange trading. The British pound opened unchanged at $5.03½. French francs were off .00¼ of a cent at 6.59 cents.

Engineers Public Gross Earnings Up

Engineers Publi Service Company reports for 12 months ended June 30 consolidated gross earnings of $42,560,800 and consolidated net operating revenue of $17,831,109, which compare with $42,314,158 and $19,397,439, respectively, for previous 12 months. Balance of consolidated earnings for preferred stock was $833,718 for the current period, against $3,903,132 for previous 12 months. These balances compare with preferred dividend requirements of $2,323,526.

Income of the parent company, primarily from interest and dividends of subsidiaries, was $1,156,979 for the 2 Months ended June 30, last, against $3,047,839 for the preceding 12 months. Balance of these earnings for preferred dividends for the current period was $998,557, against $2,804,463 for the previous 12 months.

Melville Shoe Corp. Makes Report

Melville Shoe Corporation reports for six months ended June 30, 1934, net income after all charges of $1,074,402, equal after preferred dividends to $2.69 a share on the 371,461 common shares, which compares with net of $465,826 in the same period of 1933 equal after preferred dividends to $1.06 a common share.

Sales during the first half of 1934 amounted to $13,331,775, against $8,467,295 in first six months of last year.

Dollar Closes Up in London Market

London, Aug. 1 (AP)—The United States dollar gained ¼ cent to the pound today, closing at $5.03 5-16 to the pound as compared to the overnight rate of $5.03 9-16. The opening was at $5.03⅝.

The French franc was firmer at 6.62⅜ to the pound compared to its previous quotation of 78.46.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

OBSERVATION NO. 32345

And outside of something we haven't tried to regulate by law, there's probably nothing so hard to find as something we have regulated by law.

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME

Hamer, Mo., cemetery:

The Ladies' Aid society met at the church last Thursday for quilting. They urged all members to be present as the losing side was going to treat the other side as they were in a contest. At about one o'clock they got all the ears they could get and loaded their crowd in and started for the Cozy Theatre and paid their way into the show, which was only 5 cents that day. They made them believe they were going to stop out on the way for a treat. They all had a good time and lots of fun, but we rather think they were somewhat disappointed in their treat probably expecting ice cream and cake.

"What always puzzled me," reflects Genevieve the kitchen cynic, "is the large and constant demands for gals who demand."

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Helpful Aunt Bella:

I am getting married soon and would like to know if it is really true that two can live as cheaply as one? Anxious.

Ans.—Sure, baby. All you'll have to do is both join a nudist colony and eat on alternate weeks.

A. ("Helping Hand") Bella.

THE SIGH SENILE

Of all the evils that there are
In all the world, the worst by far
Is rampant, raving, raving youth
That deems it cute to be uncouth.
T. T.

Women are a problem—
They would rather be
Anywhere but where they Happen now to be;
When on a vacation
They get very glum
Longing to get back to
Where they started from;
When a woman's home she
Whimpers, raves and rants
Like a restless child with Hornets in the pants.

Then in desperation
Husbands falter, slip
And agree to finance
One more futile trip.

X-RAY
Examination, consultation and trial treatment absolutely free to all who suffer from rheumatism. This wonderful light treatment is accomplished without drugs or medicine. No matter what you have been told, remember Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfills the above offer.

STOMACH AND HEART
Mr. Ralph Dubbroth, 71 Rock St., Framingham, Mass., says:—"For two years I suffered from stomach and heart trouble, bloating gas pains, short breath and was gaining in weight so that I was very much too heavy, and in fact I felt miserable. I read of Dr. Walsh and a friend advised me to go to him. Medicines and I feel so much better since he treated me that I took my sister to Dr. Walsh. She will gladly endorse this statement seeing that others who suffer as I did may find relief as she did."
Dr. Walsh and get well again.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1934

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

The Consumer Loses

PITY poor Mr. Boston, consumer! He somehow feels that he always loses.

This home owners' sinking sensation is created afresh by the latest order of the State Department of Public Utilities.

Reductions are ordered in the rates of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company which, it is estimated, will save the small home owner about ten cents a month.

But the company for the first time is given permission to charge for electric light bulbs.

Good quality bulbs sell at 20 cents. Most small residences have at least 40 bulbs, none of which is good for over a year's use.

Frank H. Sullivan, who has led in seeking a decreased rate for electricity, seems 100 per cent right in denouncing the "reduction" as being REALLY a net INCREASE.

Wall Street Control

ECONOMIC recovery thrives on faith and confidence and is thwarted by insidious aspersions on the integrity of business.

Knowing this, Joseph P. Kennedy, Chairman of the new Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, clarified the atmosphere by his reassuring talk before the National Press Club at Washington.

As advocates of the Stock Exchange reform measure, the Hearst newspapers welcome Mr. Kennedy's pledge that the new Act will be administered constructively—without grudge or rancor.

Apparently the experiment in bringing an experienced business executive to an administrative post, instead of another doctrinaire New Dealer from the academic halls, is bearing fruit.

"A newcomer in public life, Mr. Kennedy, who is experienced in business and in banking, is of course still very much on trial as a public servant.

Nevertheless, in his first public appearance, he made an excellent impression. He uttered the most valuable words which have come out of Washington in many a day.

He gave hope to those who would eliminate racketeering and low ethical practices from the financial markets, without curtailing their economic usefulness in syphoning capital from savers to enterprisers.

If Mr. Kennedy's philosophy prevails, it may be possible to relieve the traffic congestion without going to the absurd length of driving all the automobiles from the streets.

Reforms that discourage enterprise and rob workers of opportunities of employment appeal only to the visionary academic mind.

The American people recognize the social usefulness of organized business and finance—and want only the abuses eliminated. Mr. Kennedy rightly said that useful and honest business deserves the confidence that it will be protected.

Pity Poor Mr. Ponzi?

Chastened by his prison years and his discouraging battle against deportation, Charles Ponzi, the high pressure financial wizard of a few years ago, today is rather a likeable fellow.

"Hello, Charlie!" you are inclined to say when you meet him, and slap him on the back, and wish him "Good Luck."

Which shows how sentimentality is prone to play tricks on even the common sense of so-called "hard boiled" men.

The simple fact, which the federal court have not forgotten, is that Charles Ponzi was convicted of serious crimes—crimes that caused suffering to thousands of victims.

If it were only the business of the law and the courts to punish criminals, we might agree that Ponzi has been adequately punished. But laws are also written to deter others from crime.

If Ponzi is not deported now, more than one potential criminal—perhaps younger than Ponzi was at the time of his conviction—will say:

"Look at Ponzi. See how he beat the law. A few years in jail and then everything is all right. Let's go rob a bank. It's worth a few years in jail."

The answer is obvious. The law must be enforced to the limit. Ponzi may want pity now. A few years ago he showed none.

Where Lies the Blame?

On Sunday afternoon a gang of hoodlums brutally beat a police officer as he sought to arrest the driver of a stolen car. To their great shame, more than 2000 persons who were nearby in Columbus Park watched it all and did nothing to interfere.

Here indeed is a fine respect for law and order. How do these young gangsters get that way? And what is wrong with respectable citizens, householders and fathers of children that they tolerate such flagrant disrespect for authority?

Do our schools no longer teach respect and obedience? Or is there something wrong with our homes in these days of fast cars?

Do parents no longer inculcate the old-fashioned virtues in their children? Those virtues—respect for authority, thrift, the willingness to work, cleanliness and the rest—made New England great.

If they are abandoned, we will become a race of hoodlums. Let us hope that Sunday's incident in South Boston will remain an isolated example rather than an indication of what is to come.

Navy Yard Active

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt promises that work at the Charlestown Navy Yard will go forward steadily. Employment at our navy yard is currently close to its maximum of allowance.

We are glad to have Mr. Roosevelt dispel fears that employment at this great Charlestown plant would be diminished upon completion, now near, of two destroyers. On these a great many of the 1800 navy workers are being kept busy.

Stop the Paroles

United States District Attorney Francis J. W. Ford has been quoted as saying he is going to take up with the Federal judges here the advisability of imposing longer sentences of imprisonment in counterfeiting cases.

One obvious way to make the sentences longer would be to end the vicious parole system now too generally prevalent.

Change of Heart

By Winifred Black

Greek, Latin, Hebrew, higher mathematics, French, Germans, a little Italian, psychology—mass mind—the test for morons—everything that is highbrow and intellectual, and very, very clever.

That's Margaret.

Daughter of a fairly prosperous middle west family, she has outgrown a small town mother.

No use for religion, no belief in friendship, no enthusiasm for anything on earth.

Sharp tempered, sharp tongued, rather a nasty grin once in a while—that was what Margaret was like—six months ago!

You respected her, you admired her will, you saw that she was doing the very best she could according to her likes, but you couldn't love her to save your life.

Winifred Black

I met her yesterday at the house of a friend—in a real home, with a husband and a wife, and a nest of puppies, and a garden and plans for the future—and everything.

And Margaret wasn't grinning her little distorted grin. She was smiling and two or three times she laughed a full hearted, full throated laugh.

"What on earth has happened to Margaret?" I thought, and it wasn't long before I found out.

Margaret has gone to work—she has a job, as an investigator for the relief committee.

Margaret works from eight in the morning until nine or ten o'clock at night, she has two hundred families to "see to."

She's in and out of hospitals and poor houses and jails and the juvenile court and the reform school, and she has two hundred families looking to her for help and comfort and advice —and she loves it.

She says she never knew so many kind, generous hearted, hard working people were in the world.

She has half a dozen half grown boys running errands for her and she's helping three little happy girls make their own wedding outfits and she's out for a layette for two different young mothers and dear me, she hasn't had a minute to read Freud or any of the spreaders of the gospel of despair for months.

Margaret is brand new and glad of it—and so am I.

Isn't it interesting?

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

Marriage is a voyage of discovery, and after the honeymoon, you will soon discover—

That the two happiest moments in a woman's day are when she hears her husband's key in the latch in the evening—and when she hears the door click behind him in the morning.

That every woman who marries "takes a boy to raise," whether he's ten years her junior or ten years her senior.

That a man's charming manners, blue eyes and brilliant mind may be the things you fell in love with, but that it's his little peculiarities and his DISPOSITION you'll have to live with.

Helen Rowland

That, as a brilliant women said long ago, "Being a wife means being a mother to a human being whom you permit to treat you like a child."

That, once the supreme struggle to get a girl's life was getting a husband; but in these days of chemical blondes, free-booters and love-pirates. It's holding ONTO one after you've got him.

That marriage seems to make a man so utterly helpless that he can't even sugar his own grapefruit or dry his own safety razor, and loses the strength to lift anything around the house except his voice.

That the fact that he is 20 minutes late, never, NEVER means that your husband has been mangled under a taxicab. Most men are chronically 20 minutes late.

That the average man never TELLS a woman anything—and when it comes to explaining anything, a mummy is chatty beside him.

That a man may change his politics, give up his work or fight with his family; but nothing but the finality of death can separate him from his pet folly or his favorite weakness—whether it's horses racing, golf, liquor, food women or just gaudy neckties.

That a girl slips into the role of wife as easily as she slips into a bungalow apron; but making a husband out of a bachelor is a labor of skill, love, art, science and time.

That lots of men may never have had adenoids, falling arches or appendicitis, but there probably never lived a man who did not have an occasional grouch, and go into the silence without warning.

Have They The System?

Elsie Robinson

Young Bill turned down a new job the other day. Swell chance!

Not any more wages—less, in fact, at first. But a much better position. And a lot more responsibility.

"Nothing doing," said Bill.

I wondered why. Bill's a smart fellow, 23, been out on his own since 18. He's a hard worker, too, willing to dig in at anything you give him, and turns out good stuff. And he could certainly use the money. He's handsome and popular; has a lot of friends; out somewhere every night. That costs. Kids aren't content with barn dances any more.

Then why did he turn down this chance?

"Well, why should I take on a load of grief and maybe get nothing out of it?" said Bill, frankly. "Things aren't so good, BUT I'M GETTING BY, AND I DON'T HAVE TO WORRY. When the day's done, I can forget it—go off and play myself a game.

"But suppose I had all that responsibility? I'd have to be thinking about it steady; maybe never get a Saturday off, and no vacation. Whatta use of living like that? I'm sitting pretty."

But did he really think he was sitting pretty? How about the future? These modern youngsters don't kid themselves much. They realize, clearer than any generation ever has, that there isn't any Santa Claus waiting to hand you a cosy seat by the fireside at sixty if you haven't hustled plenty at twenty-six.

Besides, why wasn't he flattered at the thought of all that new responsibility? Any youngster, in my day, would have been dizzy at the prospect. In more ways than I can tell, life is sweller now than it was then—infinitely more comfortable and convenient. And work meant work in 1894.

"Bill's father was getting $5 for a six-day week with 12-hour day at Bill's age—and never heard of a vacation. Yet I remember how he boasted when the boss gave him a whole new department to manage, with not an extra cent in pay. Just the kick of feeling important . . . of being trusted with all that responsibility . . . that was enough.

Responsibility. It had been Hot Stuff in 1884, 1904, 1914. But something had happened since then. Here was Bill, deliberately ducking it. Why?

"Look at your father," I said, "working like that and now he owns the while business."

"All right," says Bill, letting me get no further, "look at him! He owns his own business—and what's the answer. Three mortgages. Notes until he's got writer's cramp. And just two jumps away from a nervous breakdown from worry. Whadit buy dad, grabbing all the responsibility in sight? Whadit get any of his generation? Nothing but trouble. They slaved 'n' saved. So what? Now they're busted. Or nearly.

"But they DID get a kick out of it as they went along," I pestered.

"Don't let them kid you, old girl," said Bill, with a patronizing grin. "That's just the old saltz talk that the boss spits in here 'em on. The only thing any guy with sense gets a kick out of is the good old Jazz."

All right," I countered. "Even supposing that's all there is to a job, what do you—all of you moderns—expect to pile up for yourself by 'just sitting pretty'?"

"Gotta we get by. We've got the system," laughed Bill.

Have they? They seem to have. Bill's always going places. Needs a car. Passed up a job that might have gotten him one in five years. But in the meantime—well, he can borrow Dad's. Or Fred's. And mooch movie money from Ma.

And Dolly—Bill's sister? She's "gets by" too. Dolly isn't exactly pretty, or awfully bright. But she has "charm." And she knack of making herself useful in rich homes. So Dolly manages. Someone is always staking Dolly to new clothes, jewelry, or giving her "a perfectly adorable dress that has hardly been worn at all."

Bill and Dolly, Fred and Joe and Rose—scores, thousands, a whole generation of smart, likable youngsters, both single and married, "getting by" and "getting by and not worrying!" HAVE THEY THE SYSTEM?

Are they smart to be ducking responsibility? Will they live longer, have more fun, be gayer and more generous humans as a consequence?

Were we oldsters saps to do as we did—and are we paying for it as a consequence?

I know MY answer. I THINK THE KIDS ARE DUMB. I'D A MILLION TIMES RATHER HAVE THE KICK OF CARRYING A MAN'S SIZE LOAD, EVEN THOUGH IT LEFT ME BANKRUPT, THAN 'JUST GET BY". But—

Am I right, or wrong? Sez YOU—what?

A FRIEND LEAVES

We played together, he and I,
And life seemed very certain then,
Nor was it hinted we would die
Before the summer came again.

Yet now the word comes. Gone is he
With whom this very day I'd planned
In happy comradeship to be
Walking this golden stretch of sand.

How strange are meetings and farewells!
How closely linked are loss and gain!
In every glorious friendship dwells
For one the certainty of pain.

Now here alone I walk the shore,
The ache of sorrow in my heart,
Braving the bitterness once more
That comes when good old friends have to part.

I'll see you next July," said he,
And I remember with a sigh
That promise which he made to me,
But he is gone, and it's July!

Growth of Spoils System Danger to Democrats

By James T. Williams, Jr.

In spite of the alarming extension of the spoils system under the Roosevelt administration—due chiefly to the fact that the chairman of the Democratic national committee is also postmaster general and dictator over all federal patronage—Democratic congressmen in a number of states are encountering formidable opposition for renomination.

It was predicted on this page last May that four of the nine members of the Oklahoma delegation in the Seventy-third Congress were in danger of defeat for renomination in the Democratic primaries. Three have been defeated for renomination and the fourth declined to be a candidate because he feared defeat.

One of the reasons for this upset in Oklahoma was the general dissatisfaction over the dispensing of federal patronage under the spoils system. Not only were those who failed to get on the payroll dissatisfied, but the general public was resentful of the incompetency of many of the appointees to whom the federal jobs were given in reward for political activity.

AN ENCOURAGING SIGN

Alabama and Illinois are other states in which Democratic candidates for Congress have been denied renomination in spite of the fact that they boasted of their support of President Roosevelt and were liberally supplied with patronage by the chairman-postmaster general. And at this writing only 17 of the 48 states have yet held their primaries.

This is not a bad sign, except of the spoils men of politics. For the general public it is a most encouraging sign. It indicates that even the rank and file of the party in power are getting weary of the iniquitous system under which the political parasites on the payroll of our obsolete system of county and local government are trading their support of senatorial and congressional candidates for federal offices for their favors.

It indicates also that senators and representatives in Congress who betray the public interest by auctioning off the federal offices at their disposal to the highest political bidder are running foul of a growing public sentiment against the spoils system.

President Roosevelt can halt the raid on the merit system by the spoils men of politics when ever he makes up his mind to suit the action of the President to the record of the presidential candidate. As a candidate for President and before that as governor of New York, as the Democratic nominee for vice-president and in the days when he was a progressive member of the New York legislature Mr. Roosevelt was a champion of civil service reform. From these assurances of his belief in the merit system of appointment and his abomination of the spoils system the American people had every reason to believe that as President, Mr. Roosevelt would make a record that would favorably compare with that of Grover Cleveland as a champion of the merit system.

Nor have Mr. Roosevelt's supporters altogether abandoned hope that he will yet give battle to the spoilsmen. This he cannot effectively do, however, until he compels Mr. Farley to give up either the office of postmaster general or the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee. The two offices are in conflict. It was never intended that they should be held by the same man. The postmaster general is supposed to devote his entire time to the administration of that important office. He cannot do that if he is at the same time functioning as chairman of the national committee of his party and dictating to the other members of the cabinet and the heads of the independent agencies of the federal government when they shall recommend to the President for appointment to all of the thousands of federal offices at his disposal.

And until the Roosevelt administration takes the field under the leadership of the President for the extension of the merit system throughout the federal service, Mr. Roosevelt cannot be of much assistance to those progressive Democrats and Republicans in more than three thousand counties throughout the United States who are struggling to throw off the yoke of ox cart government.

EXAMPLE MAY BE FOLLOWED

Ox cart government in every state in the Union is maintained by the spoils system. To get rid of ox cart government the people must first be emancipated from the rule of office holders, who owe their place on the payroll of government to the ox cart drivers—the county rings and the local bosses whom the chairman-postmaster general of the Roosevelt administration is organizing into one vast army under his command.

Every time a Democratic Congressman is defeated in the primaries it is a vote cast for renomination because he has betrayed the public interest in permitting ox cart politicians to determine his recommendations for federal appointment the people strike a blow against the spoils system and against the ox cart system of county and local government. The example set by Oklahoma might well be followed by other states in the primaries yet to be held.

Human Side of the News; Market for Diamonds

By Edwin C. Hill

As goes the United States so goes the business of selling diamonds, which is why things have been looking up a bit lately in the market for the most brilliant and most glamorous of all minerals.

With times somewhat better, at least in comparison with the preceding three years, the American public is becoming diamond conscious again.

So the experts say, and their deductions are borne out by the report of a profit for the famous De Beers Company of South Africa. In the last fiscal year De Beers made three-quarters of a million dollars against a deficit of a quarter of a million in 1932.

DIAMOND NAMES

Kimberly and De Beers are two names synonymous with diamonds. What Dawson City was to the Klondike so was Kimberly to the diamond rush, and what the Hudson's Bay Company is to furs, the De Beers Company is to diamonds.

But Kimberly today is a stagnant little city, and the great hole in its center, from which come the jewels, is quiet and idle. De Beers is not working its great mine, a mile in circumference and having a depth of some 1500 feet.

It is the company's policy to control the output so as to keep up prices. And with a handsome supply on hand, De Beers will wait until the demand again makes it necessary to send down an army of natives, at the wage of $1.50 a day, into the blue pit.

While the South African fields yield about ninety-eight per cent of the world's diamond output, the mine has been found all over the world, even in the United States, and, as generally agreed, is of volcanic origin.

The diamonds of antiquity came from India, the largest of these being the Great Mogul, taken from the fabulous mines of Golconda and first described by Tavernier, a French traveler, who saw it in India in 1665. This stone weighed 787 carats, its whereabouts is unknown, but it is believed that the Great Mogul was cut up and that one of it is the famous Kohinnor.

This gem, seized from an Indian prince during the British invasion of the Punjab, was presented to Queen Victoria by the East India Company to become part of the British Crown jewels.

GREAT STONE FOUND

It is interesting to note that the world's fourth largest diamond, found this year by a poor prospector in Pretoria, is of almost the same size as the great Mogul, which for centuries held rank as the most marvelous stone in the world.

This Jonker diamond, named after Jacobus Jonker, 62 years old bearded native, weighs 726 carats, which is about five ounces, is pure white and like an egg in size and shape. Jonker, the father of seven children, had been digging for 18 years without success.

He sat in his hut one day last January as his two son and a native wearily worked. Suddenly the natives stopped in amazement. There in the bottom of a gravel he had been washing was a great ston... He began cleaning it hurriedly and then, realizing his find, shouted:

"Master, master, I have found it!"

That night Jonker tied the stone around his wife's neck and while she tried to sleep he, two of his sons and two friends kept guard with loaded revolvers. In the months they spent with the diamond in safe keeping, and in another day he had sold it to Sir Ernest Oppenheimer on behalf of a syndicate for $315,000.

The discovery of diamonds in South Africa dates back only 67 years. A little boy playing on the shore of the Orange River came upon a pretty stone which he took home.

His mother noticed the lustre, and after the youngster had tired of the new-found toy and had thrown it into the dirt heap in the yard, she handed it to Erasmus it to a neighbor. He asked to see the pebble and, digging it out, threw it back.

That pebble, the first diamond in South Africa, was sold for $2,500 to the Governor of Cape Town, and it led to the diamond rushes and the diamond mining which have since yielded close on to a billion dollars worth of this purest carbon crystal from volcanoes, ages ago, deposited beneath the South African soil.

The Jonker find occurred only three miles from the Premier mine where in 1905, the Cullinan, greatest of all diamonds, shone through the blue earth to dazzle the world.

That stone, weighing more than a pound, was sold to the Transvaal government for $800,000 for presentation to King Edward VII. And before it had been cut up into nine stones, the King looked at it and said: "If I had seen it in the road, I should have kicked it aside as a lump of glass."
